MARCONI TALKS WITH MUSSOLINI

Wireless Inventor Is Member of Italian Senate and Is Present When Dictator Visits Upper House

VENERABLE SENATORS GIVE PREMIER HOMAGE

Fascist Leader Speaks to Legislators of Italian Accomplishments in Beam Wireless and in Conquest of Air

ROME, Nov. 16.—Premier Mussolini today received the homage of the Italian Senate which will take up the recently formulated bill for the defence of the state, the venerable members applauding him as the guiding spirit of the new generation of Italians who, in his own words, "are always twenty years old." Unlike the aggressive leader who addressed the Senate Chamber in its session last week, was a calm Mussolini who entered Italy's equivalent of the House of Lords amid the applause of the more than 170 white-haired legislators.

BROTHER COMES TO AID OF GARIBALDI

HE HAS FAITH IN HIS BROTHER, HE SAYS, AND WILL STAND BY HIM TO THE END

Complicity in Spanish Plot He Regards as Impossible to One of Their Family Name

PARIS, Nov. 16.—All foreigners moving toward the Italian frontier are being put through a fine mesh sieve by French authorities. The strictest orders have been issued to the police to prevent any characters crossing the border, so as to avoid the possibility of allowing plotters against the life of Premier Mussolini to use France as a jumping-off place.

There has been a roundup in the regions of Toulon and Nice of suspected anarchists who have been held for investigation and verification of their passports.

The arrival in Paris of General Peppino Garibaldi from New York early this morning brought a counter to the charges and rumors which have weighed so heavily on his brother Ricotti since he was placed under arrest. The elder brother stoutly asserts his belief in Ricotti's good faith, and asks his friends to suspend judgment until all the evidence is presented.

After declaring that such a thing as complicity in the Spanish plot was impossible for a Garibaldi, Peppino appeared before the examining magistrate this afternoon, not as a witness, but as a seeker of information.

He explained that he had come to the ocean to defend the name of Garibaldi. An affecting meeting between the head of the family and the young brother occurred in the hallway of the Palace of Justice, after which Ricotti was taken back to Saint Prison. Peppino reiterated his faith in his brother's innocence, and that he would stand by him to the end.

Trail Conservatives Opposed to Mr. Bowser

TRAIL, B.C., Nov. 16.—The Trail Conservative Association tonight appointed eight of the Trail-Rosland riding's quota of ten delegates to the Kamloops convention and instructed them to vote for any other candidate than Mr. W. J. Bowser for Provincial leader.

Mr. Bowser, who was defeated in the last election, is now a member of the House of Commons.

U.S. MAIL IS OPENED BY INCOME TAX MAN

REGISTERED LETTER CONTAINING BANK DEPOSIT IS HANDLED OVER BY POSTMASTER

Time Given to Consult Washington—Action Taken on Order of Judge of Federal Court

SEATTLE, Nov. 16.—Springing a coup in their war against Canadian liquor houses who are alleged to owe the United States income taxes in excess of $1,000,000, agents of the Internal Revenue Intelligence today halted the process of the mails.

Through Assistant District Attorney C. T. McKinnley, they secured an order from Federal Judge Jeremiah Netter, directing Postmaster Charles M. Perkins to turn in to the court a letter containing a bank draft for $75,807.50.

This draft, according to the petition upon which the court order was predicated, was being sent from Los Angeles to an address in Vancouver, B.C.

Money Paid Is Held
In the meantime the sum of $75,807.50 deposited for the draft in the Helman Commercial Trading and Savings Bank of Los Angeles, is being held under a warrant of distraint. A similar warrant was served upon Postmaster Perkins here by Revenue collector of Internal Revenue for this district, to hold the draft letter.

The court action today is an unprecedented one as it was unprecedented as it was unprecedented, and expected to result in a bitter legal tilt.

Postmaster Perkins was given time to communicate with the Third Assistant Postmaster-General in Washington, who has charge of the registry division, before actually turning the letter into the custody of the court.

May Reach $1,000,000
Income tax assessments, including penalties for non-payment in the sum of $91,369.16 are pending here against the export company, and a $200,000 assessment is on the books in San Francisco. More than a year ago $100,000 in bonds were seized in San Francisco to be applied to the delinquent tax and their disposition is still pending in the courts here. It is believed that the assessments will reach $1,000,000 before the Government is done.

The petition for today's order was verified by A. D. Burford, special agent in charge of the Intelligence Service in Seattle.

British Radio Is To Be News Agency Under Government

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Broadcasting, and the future of radio was the subject under discussion in the House of Commons last night in connection with the new Government Broadcasting Company which is to take over a private company January 1.

One of the chief objections raised was a proposal that the corporation be empowered to collect its own news instead of relying on the news agencies as is the case with the private company.

Mr. William Mitchell-Thompson, Postmaster General, in behalf of the Government, defended the privilege, saying that broadcasting could not be held down to the present narrow limits, but should be allowed to expand so that the broadcasting corporation could collect its own news.

He argued the corporation should be forbidden to express opinions of an editorial character. Likewise it should not be permitted to broadcast advertisements.

Message Found From Sinking Submarine

HAMBURG, Nov. 14.—An echo of one of the many submarine tragedies of the Great War has come to the village of Appenrade, where a bottle containing an evidently genuine message of despair, written fully ten years ago, has been cast upon the beach on the North Sea coast.

"Aboard U boat, 14. We are sinking," read the message, written on a bit of paper turned yellow with time. There followed then an address of the German submarine U 14 was lost in the North Sea during the latter part of 1914.

ANOTHER SCENE IN PARLIAMENT

Manners at Westminster Apparently Decay—House of Commons Witnesses Crude Verbal Exchange

LADY ASTOR ACCUSED OF HABIT OF INTERRUPTION

One Member Suggests That She Learn to Hold Her Tongue, Another That She Shut Her Mouth and Listen

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Viscountess Astor was again the centre of a series of verbal exchanges in the House of Commons today, following into altercation with Miss Ellen C. Wilkinson, Mr. George Lansbury, Mr. George Buchanan and other Laborites.

The House was discussing relief for the unemployed, when Lady Astor challenged a remark by Miss Wilkinson, who tartly accused Lady Astor of putting words in her mouth she had no intention of using.

The breeze had hardly died down when the Viscountess interrupted Mr. Lansbury who was replying that the noble lady would be very much more respected if she would learn to hold her tongue.

Amid laughter the chairman reproved Mr. Lansbury for making an improper remark, and the member retorted by asking the chairman to invite the noble lady to hold her tongue. For this he received further reproach from the chairman.

Presently Mr. George Buchanan, who represents Glasgow, was observing that the people in that city were starving for lack of an adequate poor law for their relief, when Lady Astor challenged him to give names. She declared he was not entitled to make such statements unless prepared with proofs. Mr. Buchanan offered to take Lady Astor to Glasgow to see for herself. This led to further recriminations. Mr. Buchanan snapping back at another demand that he should answer her question: "I will answer if you shut your mouth and listen. You might as best try to have some manners and sense. You can't stand the truth."

Various supporters of the contending members joined in the fray. The chair appealed to him not to carry on in this manner, which was met by the Viscountess who retorted that she was constantly interrupting the members. Mr. Buchanan then remarked: "What I object to is the noble lady not being able to take her medicine. She should remember that she is not dealing with her horses at Newmarket."

On the whole the House treated the incident good humoredly.

INJURED MAN FOUND ON MALAHAT DRIVE

MOTORIST DISCOVERS WRECKED CAR AND FINDS UNCONSCIOUS DRIVER

Mr. Harry King Hurt in Automobile Accident—Well on Road to Recovery

With severe cuts and abrasions and in an unconscious condition, Harry King, of 1027 Chamberlain Street, was brought into the St. Joseph's Hospital at about 7 o'clock last night by a taxi who gave him the name as Mr. Rutledge. It was reported by Sergeant Jennings, of the Provincial Police.

Mr. King had a narrow escape from death while driving on the Malahat. Mr. Rutledge reported to the police. The car, a Chevrolet touring model, dropped six feet into a ditch at the side of the road, turning upside down and landing in a water hole.

While proceeding cityward over the Malahat, Mr. Rutledge saw what he believed to be a wrecked car at the side of the road and stopped his own car to get out and investigate. Finding the car overturned he looked around to see how much damage had been done, and found Mr. King in an unconscious condition. With the help of his companion, Mr. J. Allen, the unconscious man was carried to the car and driven to the hospital.

Dr. Gordon Kenning was called in. He reported Mr. King well on the road to recovery. The taxi was unable to give a description of what had occurred, however.

Rev. Charles Cameron Meets Sudden Death

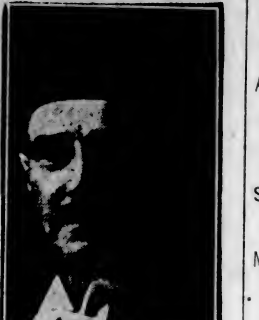

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C., Nov. 16.—Rev. Charles Cameron, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here, died suddenly this afternoon in a local jewelry shop, where he had purchased two small boxes in which to send gifts to his grandchildren in Vancouver. Apparently in the heat of health and spirits when he entered the store, Dr. Cameron collapsed a few minutes later, and was found by the police.

He reported Mr. King well on the road to recovery. The taxi was unable to give a description of what had occurred, however.

Six Canal Barges Are Loaded With Live Eels

ALBANY, N.Y., Nov. 16.—One hundred and sixty-eight tons of slippery eels alive and swimming sailed down the Hudson today. They composed the annual shipment of live eels from Quebec to New York City by way of the New York State Canal. Seven specially constructed vessels, each with tanks or cages which permit free circulation of water at all times carried the eels. The eels are the largest of the annual shipments on record, previous lots requiring only three or four of these special boats.

He will stay in the city until 9 p.m. Tuesday, when he will leave for Ottawa by the coast route. He will arrive in Ottawa on December 5 and 6.

His Royal Highness will be accompanied by Lieutenant T. H. Holsey, R.N.

MARLBOROUGH HEIR MAY BE CONCERNED

TWO CHILDREN BORN DURING MARRIAGE NOW ANNUALLY OF DUKES OF MARLBOROUGH

One of Them Is Heir to Duchy—Church Pronounces Marriage Was Never Valid or Real

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Friends of the former Duchess of Marlborough who live in London are anxiously awaiting the official reaction of the Anglican Church, if any, to the announcement of her marriage. Thus far the church authorities have been conservative in expressing their views, and it is assumed that they await further details of the action of the Southwark diocesan court and the rota tribunal at home and the actual grounds on which the decree was granted.

The position of the offspring of the Marlborough marriage is rather unclear. They are the Marquis of Blandford, who was born in 1927, is married and has two children, and Lord Ivor Charles, born in 1928. In the eyes of the Roman Catholic Church the marriage from which they sprang did not exist, but a Roman Catholic authority has explained that the decree of nullity from the Vatican has no legal force, and therefore, in the eyes of the civil law, the Marlborough offspring are in no way affected.

Should either the Duke of Connaught, having regularized their own personal positions in the eyes of the Roman Catholic Church, wish to regularize the position of their children, it is declared, there would be no serious obstacle, and the process of adjustment could be an easy matter amounting possibly to a simple declaration.

Woman Is Killed by Automobile in Fog

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C., Nov. 16.—Mrs. Susan A. Tilton was killed on the street here last evening when she struck during a heavy fog by an automobile driven by Archie Watt, Canadian National Railway master mechanic, who has been charged with manslaughter.

Mrs. Tilton had been a resident of the city since the sensational trial over the boyhood of the school board when they attempted to obtain material for a school, which she claimed, was being put up on the wrong site. Although she admitted carrying a rifle at the time, she said it was loaded only with huckshot for rabbit hunting. After the litigation was over and her side lost out, she moved to Prince George rather than send her children to the new school.

The family consists of four children, three of whom are living here. The husband is absent from the city at present.

Customs Employee Is Hit by Railway Train

EDMONTON, Nov. 16.—Struck by a northbound C.P.R. train backing up the south side to the station, T. A. Smart, an employee of the Customs Department, was instantly killed at noon Tuesday. He was walking along the track to the east of the curling rink. There were no eyewitnesses to the accident, so far as the south side has been able to determine at present.

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Nov. 16.—Loss estimated by officials of the Fish-Idaho Sugar Corporation here at $100,000, was caused by fire which broke out shortly before noon today in the concern's warehouse.

EASTERN STATES LASHED BY GALE

Accompanied by Heavy Rain, It Caused Overflowing of Rivers, Damaged Buildings and Flooded Mines

SHIP WASHED ASHORE: FISHING BOATS SUNK

Mother Vessel of Rum Chasing Fleet Is Blown High and Dry on Land—Floods Anticipated on Lowlands

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—A southerly gale, accompanied by heavy rainfall, whipped across the Eastern States today, leaving in its wake overflowing rivers, damaging buildings and flooded mines, crippling communication lines and wreaking havoc on small craft in rivers and harbors.

A death was directly due to the storm in Brooklyn, a three-year-old girl was blown off a fire escape and plunged four floors to her death. "Probably the damage potential of the greatest harm was done in Pennsylvania and West Virginia, where all rivers were reported overflowing their banks, and where railroads, bridges, and communication lines suffered heavy damage. Residents of the lowlands were warned to be in readiness to move out, due to expected flood conditions resulting from the swollen waters of the Ohio, Monongahela and Allegheny rivers. In northern West Virginia scores were driven from homes invaded by flood waters.

Coal Mines Shut Down
In eastern Pennsylvania water was reported higher than any time since 1914, and coal mines in the Shamokin district were forced to shut down. In Reading houses were unroofed and trees uprooted. At Marcus Hook, below Philadelphia, damage was caused when a British freighter beached and collided with an Italian steamer.

As it swept across New Jersey the gale blew down the wall of a new theatre at Ashbury Park and capsized a tug stranded on a mudbar off Atlantic City. Twenty-five workmen narrowly escaped injury when the wall fell and the fourteen members of the tug crew were saved by the coast guard in Massachusetts.

More than a score of fishing boats were sunk, two wharves were washed away, and the U.S.S. Morrill, mother ship of the rum-chasing fleet, was washed high and dry on shore during a gale which swept into Provincetown harbor from the south tonight.

The Morrill was at anchor in the harbor when the wind struck and soon after sundown. She dragged her anchor, and before her crew could get her under way toward the sea the ship was drifting ashore. She struck bottom and the wind drove her high and dry about the time the two masts collapsed under the force of the gale and were swept away. There was no loss of life reported and no one was aboard any of the sunken fishing boats.

As suddenly as the wind came, it passed away to the north. The waterfront was strewn with wreckage, but the town itself suffered little damage. No estimate of the damage done in the harbor could be made tonight.

SOUTHERN CHINESE ALONE HAVE VISION

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAY ORIENT MANAGER THINKS THEY WILL CONTROL

Canotone, He Says, Appear to Be the Only Party With Any Definite Public Policy

VANCOUVER, Nov. 16.—The Southern Chinese boycott against British goods which includes Canadian, is dying down, according to Mr. A. Brodhead, general traffic manager in the Orient for the Canadian National Railway, with headquarters at Hong Kong.

The situation in China is looking better, Mr. Brodhead said. The southern element may by this time control all areas south of the Yangtze River.

The Southerners appear to be the only party with a definite policy, he declared. They are working consistently along lines laid down by the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen. In Mr. Brodhead's opinion, it is only a question of time until they will be the predominant factor in China.

The Soviet Union, which has been reported extensively, is not serious, he thinks. It has not gone deep under the "China" skin.

The Southerners are making use of Russian free lance who are out of employment. Mr. Brodhead contended that the Government's plan, controlled by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, is a man with quiet leanings toward the West.

He said that the Southern element has been through the hands of the Canton and Hong Kong, after a year of difficulties. There is no boycott in North or Central China against Canadian goods. The merchants of the South would like to lift it, and are doing it to some extent, he declared. This is growing and is already being felt in trade. Normal trading conditions are to be expected throughout all China shortly, it is believed.

Mr. Brodhead arrived on Monday on R.M.S. Empress of Canada.

Governor-General of Irish Free State Gets Censure of Premier

He Is Quoted as Declaring That He Is Pleased Republicans Boycott Irish Parliament—Utterance Said to Be Violation of Rule as to Speeches Made by the King or His Representatives

Mr. Timothy Healy, Once Famous Rebel, Accused of Favoring Government Party

DUBLIN, Nov. 16.—Governor-General Timothy Healy incurred considerable censure in the Dail Eireann today because of a recent speech in which he was quoted as declaring that the longer the Republicans boycotted the Dail, the better pleased he was.

Thomas Johnson, the Labor member, who raised a question of privilege and asserted that the Governor-General's speech showed political partisanship, and was in violation of the well established rule in Great Britain and the Dominion, that the King and his governors must abstain from party speeches. He contended that Mr. Healy consequently was guilty of constitutional impropriety.

President Cosgrave, in reply, accepted Johnson's point of view, and said that the executive council did not accept responsibility for the Governor-General's speech. The Governor-General, he said, must accept the advice of any party in office. Details ensued and all the deputies agreed that the speech, as reported, was improper.

PARTLOW RELATES MORE ADVENTURES

CUSTOMS SECRET SERVICE AGENT TELLS OF FURTHER EXPERIENCES

Company of Narcotic Smugglers Were Planning to Extend Operations When Their Arrest Came

VANCOUVER, Nov. 16.—Deliberate hijacking of a rival drug running syndicate was ordered by one of "the company" principals, Verne Partlow, accused drug runner, declared in sworn testimony at the city police court, Tuesday, when the trial of three Chinese and three Italians, charged with drug smuggling resumed before Magistrate H. C. Shaw.

The accused are Frank Marino, Dominic Marino, Dominic Cristof, Lee Coy Lim, Lee Sing and Wong Lay Toy, all of whom were arrested at the hijacking of Customs Inspector Norman de Graves, who followed the case through its devious channels for many months before descending upon the alleged ring.

Partlow, who occupied the stand all afternoon, gave minute details of elaborate plans, mainly he said, announced by Lee Coy Lim, to retrieve valuable drug parcels dropped overboard from liners plying to the Orient. Frequently the loads were lost, but the heels of failure came a new plan, and the speed boat M168 and its crew of whites and Orientals were kept busy searching the waters to the Gulf of Georgia for mysterious packages.

Hijacking Incident
The hijacking incident came about, Partlow said, when some one aboard a liner at Victoria refused to sell his bundle, but decided to drop it overboard for a rival concern.

"We were instructed," said the witness, "to follow the liner, watch when the drugs were dropped and to pick them up. If anyone got there first we were to tell them we were 'customs officers' and take the bundle away from them." The plan failed, however, because no drugs were seen to fall from the liner's deck.

While Empress liners appeared to be the sole transport agencies for the "company" at first, the witness told the court that efforts were made to extend the business to Blue Funnel liners, and, latterly, Lee Coy Lim announced his intention to "work" on Admiral liners, either at Seattle or Victoria, but before this expansion of business took place the Customs men acted and the members of the company were placed under arrest.

British Coal Miners Returning to Work

LONDON, Nov. 16.—More than 12,000 miners, in addition to those already in the fields, were working today and a movement has already started to have the ban on the export of coal removed. The Mines Department consented to receive a Welsh delegation to urge the lifting of the ban.

While there is still little doubt that a majority of the miners will vote for acceptance of the Government's plan, surprise was caused today by many districts in Wales and Scotland registering against acceptance. It is reported that Harold Spenser Morris, who is chairman of the National Wages Board for Railways, will be appointed chairman of the National Coal Tribunal.

Air Raid Possibilities Studied by War Office

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The British War Office, the Westminster Gazette understands, is already laying plans against air raids in the next war. Cellars, tubes and tunnels are being tabulated for hiding capacity and yesterday 150 picked men of the Guards regiment spent several hours in the tube belonging to the Postoffice, which conveys the mails from Central London to Paddington railway station. These men were testing their staying capacity in a minimum of fresh air and were watched by scientists.

It is understood similar tests will be made weekly.

COSSACK OFFICER HAS MANY THRILLS

SENTENCED TO DEATH BY "REDS," BUT MANAGED TO ESCAPE FROM CLUTCHES

Mr. Michael Keck Lived in Cemetery for Two Months, With Aid of Food From Sister

To be sentenced to death, to escape, and take refuge in a cemetery for two months, to be one of six of a battalion who escaped death from the Russian "Reds," is the thrilling experience of a young Cossack officer, who was a passenger on board the Iyo Maru, which docked here last night from the Orient.

Mr. Michael Keck, about thirty years of age, handsome, tall and athletic, is a Cossack officer, with the typical style of a Cossack officer, is the fortunate person.

Mr. Keck's adventures would fill pages and every line would hold interest, but he is able to write them in English, but unfortunately the young officer speaks only broken English and what tales were told were in Russian, where he remained, a fellow passenger on board the liner.

Was Sentenced to Death
Mr. Keck is one of the White army who held out against what he termed the tyranny of the Bolshevik regime. In the world war he rose from the ranks to attain a captaincy, a most unusual occurrence in that country. When the overthrow took place, and the "Reds" took command, young Keck joined the White army and fought against the Bolsheviks. His battalion was cut to pieces by the "Reds" and he escaped with five others, only to be captured later and sentenced to death.

While being held in prison he bribed two of the guards to set him free and secured a horse and sought refuge in a cemetery. He was aided by means of assistance and food from his sister who remained in hiding for two months, eventually escaping from the district.

For months Keck wandered through the country, picking up a meal here and there, and two years ago he managed to leave Russia for Shanghai, where he remained, working as a mechanic until he left for this country.

"Reds" Have Taken Everything
Mr. Keck has no idea where his father, mother or sisters are or what has been their fate. He declares that the "Reds" have taken everything that looks like a weapon from the peasants and have left them only with the "Reds" in a sack through life with "the peasant," he said, "would gladly fight this oppression, but is powerless to do so with the means at his disposal." He was of the opinion that 20,000,000 "Whites" had either been killed or fled from the country to escape the oppression of the Bolsheviks. Mr. Keck is bound for Seattle.

Unfinished Measures Will Be Introduced

WINNIPEG, Nov. 16.—The Old Age Pension Bill will be reintroduced at the opening session of Parliament in December, Hon. Dr. J. H. King, Minister of Health and Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, stated here today. Mr. King passed through on his way from the Pacific Coast to Ottawa.

The bill of revaluation of soldiers' lands, the Minister intimated, also would be reintroduced. The latter bill, he said, would be slightly revised to meet objections raised during the last session of Parliament.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—A cordon of police in addition to the regular guard was thrown about the Lake Shore Drive Hotel tonight following the appearance of a man who seized the wife of the manager and uttered threats against her and Queen Marie, who is staying at the hotel. The Queen, who attended the opera tonight, was not told of the incident.

Charges Made Against Aldermen in Ottawa
OTTAWA, Nov. 16.—Charges that Mayor J. P. Biharris, Controller; C. J. Tulley and Aldermen T. R. Danvers, used funds of the city for their own private purposes during their term of office will be aired in a judicial investigation to be held immediately. The City Council decided in favor of the investigation at the conclusion of a sensational meeting last night, before which the charges were made by Alderman Thomas Brethour.

The three members accused stoutly denied any wrongdoing and said they were at a loss to know what the charges referred to.

Alderman Brethour was pressed to give details of his charges, but refused to do so until he should come before the judge conducting the inquiry.

LORD CLARENDON MAKES REPORT ON SETTLERS

Spirit of Settlers More Important Than Their Experience in This Opinion

LONDON, Nov. 16.—(Cable from George Hamilton, Staff Correspondent of Canadian Press.)—"It is a striking fact that in settled families, provided they are imbued with the right spirit, succeed just as well as experienced families," says Lord Clarendon, Under Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, in his report to the Government on his recent investigation into land settlement in Canada. The report was tabled in the House of Commons today.

Speaking for the scheme for the settlement of 3,000 British families in Canada, Lord Clarendon gave it his opinion that the selection of families on this side of the ocean has proved thoroughly competent, though perhaps there has been a preference shown for families with farming experience.

Eighty Per Cent Successful
Lord Clarendon proceeds to state that those who abandon the farming scheme scarcely exceed five per cent; of the remainder, ten per cent appear to be below the general average and success in their case is doubtful. He adds that he believes that, given reasonably favorable conditions with regard to climate, soil, and water, between eighty and ninety per cent of the families settled under the scheme will make good and remain permanently settled upon the land as farmers. The report suggests that settlement development might be substantially increased if some measure of financial assistance in taking up farms could be afforded farm workers who had not less than two years' experience of farm work in the Dominion and were in a position to contribute, say, ten per cent of the cost of the farms.

achievements of the new Italy—Marconi's discovery of radio waves in radio, and De Bernardi's victory in the Schneider Cup races.

"The other day in America, the aeronautical honor of the European continent was saved by Italian machines and courage. These are facts which disperse mountains of words," the Premier said, lifting his voice to a loud and clear pitch above the scarcely audible tones which he had used previously.

Marconi in Senate
Signor Marconi, who is a senator, was seated in one of the front benches and was given a wave of applause by his colleagues. During the rest of the proceedings the Premier seemed to express the feeling that he felt out of place among so many of his elders, in the palace where Catherine de Medici once trod and which is built on the ruins of Nero's baths. His eyes wandered constantly to the galleries and only when Senator Marconi engaged him in a long conversation during an intermission did his face light up with pleasure.

WEST VANCOUVER, Nov. 16.—At a Conservative gathering here Monday night, J. B. Leyland and W. R. Hamilton were elected delegates to the Provincial Conservative Convention in Kamloops, November 23. For the information of delegates, an open ballot was taken on the two candidates for leadership of the party. The vote favored the election of Mr. Leon J. Ladner. Recommendations that provincial legislation providing for absentee balloting be abolished and that the name of the party be changed from Liberal-Conservative to "Conservative" Association were passed by the meeting and will be forwarded to Kamloops.

Miner Found Lifeless When Rescuers Arrive

MOUNDVILLE, W. Va., Nov. 14.—Rescue crews, searching the interior of the Glendon & Sons Coal Company's First Street mine here last night, found the body of Thomas Robbins, forty-four, last of the men entombed following an explosion early today. Discovery of Robbins' body brought the death toll to five, with all workers accounted for. Robbins was injured and thirteen escaped alive. It had been hoped that Robbins, a veteran miner, would be found alive, but his body was found lying face down in a ditch along a road a short distance from the other four men met death.

Would Sit Up Most of Night

In bed nerves would twitch and jerk so he could not sleep

This letter gives you some idea of how distressing nervous ailments become. It also points to the best method of restoring shattered nerves. Mr. E. P. Schoedcraft, Clarendonville, Que. writes:—"I suffered for three years with my nerves. I tried most everything, but without success. I could not sleep at night, my nerves were so unstrung. I would twitch first one leg and then the other. Some nights I would sit up most of the night, unable to sleep. I became so bad that I could not sit at my desk. I bought a box of Dr. Cass's Nerve Food, and felt slightly better by the time I had taken it. When I had used a full treatment I was an entirely different man—I felt better, slept better and worked better."

Canadian Development Impresses Visitor

The Earl of Elgin and Kincardine has been tremendously impressed with what he has seen of Canadian development during his recent visit to the Dominion, at the invitation of the National Council of Education. Lord Elgin, accompanied by Lady Elgin, arrived in Montreal recently on the Canadian Pacific Railway private car "Westworth," and together were met by representatives of the Council of Education and Elgin Lodge No. 7. Lord Elgin recalled his first visit to Canada to attend the Tenthenary at Quebec. The party sailed for England from Quebec on the Canadian Pacific liner Montcalm.

TIMBER SHOULD STAND TILL MARKET BETTER

So Mr. Pattullo Advises Those Who Urge That Royalties Should be Taken Off in Interior

NELSON, Nov. 11.—Owing to the absence of lumbermen from the Crow's Nest Pass direct from the sessions of the forest fire inquiry and the interior lumber inquiry here yesterday, the official submissions for both branches of the inquiry from the Mountain Lumber Manufacturers' Association were not made here, but will be made at the Cranbrook session Tuesday night. The branch of the inquiry relating to the state of the interior lumber inquiry was confined to this afternoon, and was completed in a few minutes.

Mr. C. F. McHardy, former of the original Nelson Board of Trade resolution that resulted in the inquiry being granted, expressed the view that a revision of royalties would permit "hardwood" operations that were not now feasible to be carried on.

Hon. T. B. Pattullo, Minister of Lands and Forests, stated that the question of royalties could not be opened unless all sections of the Province were willing. If the Province threw off all royalties and gave the interior operators the timber free, some of them would still be unable to make things go, he said.

Mr. Pattullo said he could see no reason why certain timber had to be utilized now on an unfavorable market instead of being held until the market was in a different state.

Herring Catch Is About Same as Last Season's

VANCOUVER, Nov. 16.—Herring fishing on the East Coast of Vancouver Island is reported active, and the catch so far this season is about the same as at this time last year.

Light catches have been recorded on the West Coast of Vancouver Island, the "run" there being later than on the other coast.

In submitting the bill, Mr. Cosgrave commented on the organized character of the raids, as proving the existence of some centre from which orders were issued.

The measure was given its first reading without a division.

Primate of England Will Resign Shortly London Express Says

The Archbishop is still in the newspaper adds, and it is understood that he himself feels that his strength is not sufficient for him to continue much longer his arduous duties. He is seventy-eight years old. Continuing the newspaper says it is a question in political circles, in view of the sharp division of opinion created by the intervention of churchmen in the coal strike, whether any of the bishops who advocated mediation in the strike will be appointed to the archbishopric.

Is Income Tax Payable On Profits From Assets?

VANCOUVER, Nov. 16.—Is the Provincial Government entitled to collect income tax on the profits arising from a sale of assets?

This question is before the Provincial Court of Revision in an appeal by the North Pacific Lumber Company, owned by the Alexander MacLaren interests, of Bellingham, Que., and Ottawa. This company, about two years ago sold three big stands of timber for $4,150,000, receiving first payments of approximately $1,000,000. Second payments of $600,000 were made this year and the Province has assessed this entire sum as profits, serving a tax notice for $50,000 thereon.

MANSLAUGHTER IS VERDICT OF JURY

CORONER'S INQUEST INTO DEATH OF FRED LA MARR HELD YESTERDAY

Witnesses Describe Incidents Leading Up to Stabbing Episode—Mrs.
Bowers to Face Murder Charge

Manslaughter was the verdict brought in by the coroner's jury against Mrs. Jean Bowers at the close of the inquest held yesterday to investigate the circumstances surrounding the death of Fred La Marr on Sunday. Mrs. Bowers will appear in court on Thursday for the preliminary hearing of the charge of murder.

The jury, after hearing the evidence, brought in a verdict that La Marr had met his death at the hands of Mrs. Jean Bowers. This verdict, Coroner E. C. Hart would not accept, and directed the jury to return a definite finding. After reconsidering the evidence, the jury returned and pronounced the verdict of manslaughter.

Saw La Marr Stabbed

Evidence given by Beatrice Ruhl, who had been living at the same address for the last six weeks, dealt with the circumstances leading up to the slaying of La Marr and of the night that took place. She told the jury that a man named Harry Robbins had come to the room after breakfast on Sunday, whereupon Mrs. Bowers had asked him whether he had telephoned to La Marr on the night previous. Robbins had answered in the affirmative and it had been this that apparently had started the quarrel between Mrs. Bowers and La Marr, witness said. La Marr had been told to "get out" by Mrs. Bowers, whereupon he had used obscene language in talking to her, asserted Beatrice Ruhl. He had also said something that seemed to drive Mrs. Bowers into a frenzy. She had taken up a frying pan when La Marr addressed her with obscene language, but after his second remark she had dropped the utensil and screamed. Then she had reached for the paring knife and had struck La Marr, witness testified. He had staggered back and had fallen to the floor calling out for "something to drink."

Jean Bowers had then rushed to his side and caressed him, and had ordered someone to telephone for a doctor. Witness stated that Mrs. Bowers had been attacked by La Marr before she had stabbed him with the knife. Beatrice Ruhl, who also saw the tragedy, corroborated the evidence given by Beatrice Ruhl, testifying that La Marr attacked Mrs. Bowers before she stabbed him. On being asked what the foul language was that La Marr had used, witness said she couldn't tell and commenced to cry. City Prosecutor Harrison, suggested that she write down the language used, which she did. This was passed on to the jury to inspect. Witness said she had seen Mrs. Bowers strike La Marr with a knife when La Marr approached her with the apparent intention of striking her.

Kissed Man She Killed

Mrs. Bowers had rushed to La Marr and kissed him after he had sunk to the floor. She had told the girls to telephone for a doctor. They had done this, Dr. George Hall responding to the call.

Dr. Hall gave evidence to the effect that he had gone to the room and, on examining the body had found La Marr dead. He had immediately telephoned the police and remained until they arrived.

Mr. H. A. Maclean, K.C., counsel for Mrs. Bowers, criticized the manner in which the authorities had acted in the case. The charge was a grave one and anyone would think the witnesses were under arrest, for he had been given no opportunity to talk with them, he stated.

Evidence given by Harry Robbins added little information to what had already been told by the other witnesses. He said that he had gone to the room to see about some laundry, and had found La Marr and Mrs. Bowers quarrelling. He had paid little attention to this and had gone out to get a drink. On his return he had found La Marr and Mrs. Bowers struggling with one another. La Marr's back had been toward him, witness said. La Marr had suddenly staggered back and then had sagged to the floor.

It was not necessary under the circumstances to call Mrs. Bowers, Coroner Hart said. She was not needed at this juncture in the proceedings. Mr. Maclean said that his client was not well enough to give evidence.

City Prosecutor Claude L. Harrison stated yesterday after hearing the verdict that the case would proceed along the lines of the original charge of murder, uninfluenced by the verdict of the coroner's jury.

FEW DELEGATES HAVE YET TO BE NAMED

Oak Bay Wards in Victoria Riding
Select on Thursday—Saanich Has Not Named Date Yet

With the interest exceedingly keen the selection of delegates from the Vancouver Island constituencies for the Kamloops convention of the Liberal-Conservative party which next week assembles to select the future leader of the party, is now nearing completion.

As far as the city delegates are concerned Wards Six and Seven, which embraces the Oak Bay section of the riding, will hold a meeting on Thursday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in St. Mary's Hall. The tie in Ward Five has been settled in favor of Mr. F. J. Popham, with a majority on recount. In the Esquimalt riding the delegates have all been selected. In addition to those whose names have already appeared choice has been made of Mr. C. H. Goodall to represent the district embracing under "Upwood, Luxton and Langford. Mr. W. O. Rowatman is the choice of Metchemin, and Mr. H. T. Fisher, of the Sooke, Otter Point and Port Renfrew districts.

The dispute with respect to Saanich, which has been settled by the agreement being reached to call another meeting for selecting delegates, has attracted perhaps more attention than any other convention on the island. The date of the new meeting has not yet been set, but will assuredly be announced in the next day or so.

In Alberni riding the delegates for the West Coast have now been chosen. They are Major J. Johnstone, Messrs. H. B. Brain and S. G. Rowborough, for Port Alberni, and Messrs. J. R. Minton and Gus Cox, for Alberni. For the West Coast territories Mr. H. J. Bell will be the delegate. The list for the east coast section of the riding has already appeared in these columns.

EMPIRE'S RESOURCES

Lord Beaverbrook is a tremendous optimist where the British Empire is concerned. He considers the pessimism that is rampant at present about England and English industry merely a repetition of history. His viewpoint is one of utter confidence, and in explaining it he compares the Empire with the United States, a comparison which pessimists usually have the habit of making. The Empire he says has an output of wheat or corn of 120,000,000 quarters a year, as against 83,000,000 quarters of the United States. He alludes to the habit there is in the United States of boasting of its natural resources, of its immense shipments of cotton and about the extent to which other nations are compelled to rely on America for their raw material. "What you never hear of in Great Britain," he says, "is the fact that the output in the British Empire of gold is 69 per cent of all the gold produced every year."

Lord Beaverbrook tells of how the Empire produces 60 per cent of all the world's rubber and supplies the United States to the extent of four-fifths of all the rubber that is consumed in that country. He shows that the Empire produces 62 per cent of the total output of tin in the world and 90 per cent of the nickel output. He remarks incidentally that the Empire supplies the United States with all the nickel that country consumes. He tells of how the area of the British Empire is four times that of the United States and the population four times greater. "It is," says Lord Beaverbrook, "because I know of these figures, not from books or from study, but from actual experience in the outer marches of the Empire, that I live here in the capital, confident of our future, and prepared to risk money, time, effort, everything that can be given, in building up an even greater confederation of nations than there has ever been in the long history of the world."

IMMIGRATION PROBLEM

It has never been satisfactorily explained, according to the shipping correspondent of The Manchester Guardian Commercial, why it is that there are fewer emigrants leaving England when trade is bad than when trade is good. The reason for this is one problem confronting the Imperial Conference. Canada during the present year has made an effort to attract British immigrants, and while, because of reduced steamship and railway fares effected by governmental co-operation with the transportation companies, there has been an increase brought about in the flow of people here it is but a small increase and this at a time when Britain has been in the throes of a coal strike for the past six months. It is not financial matters that are deterring people from coming here. The causes must be sought elsewhere.

A British settler can now travel to Quebec for $15. He can come to Winnipeg for $27.50 and as far as Vancouver for $45. The previous rates were $93 to Quebec; $120 (approximately) to Winnipeg and $142 (approximately) to Vancouver. The reduced rates are being borne partly by the transportation companies as their contribution to the effort to provide immigrants. In the first six months of the present year there were 29,460 immigrants to Canada from Great Britain compared with 22,346 and 40,061 in the corresponding periods of 1925 and 1926. Throughout the Empire, in 1925, the total number of British settlers was 105,225, a figure which is described as abnormally low as compared with many previous years. It is pointed out in this connection that during 1924 and 1925 the greater part of a million pounds was spent under the Empire Settlement Act to assist emigrants from Great Britain.

In Britain a Departmental Committee has been inquiring into the question of the difficulty of promoting immigration from the country. Its findings are now before the Imperial Conference. One of these is to the effect that unemployment pay is not keeping potential settlers from emigrating. This it appears has only a negligible effect. A memorandum from the shipping industry is also before the Imperial Conference which declares that the real obstacles to emigration are lack of initiative, which is at its lowest when trade is bad; want of information, a "false sentimentalism" in the country and a determination on the part of the Dominions to accept only the most capable settlers. In regard to the latter reason it is noted that with the introduction of cheap fares to this country, the Dominion Government relaxed its regulations so as to admit a small proportion of settlers without previous agricultural experience. It is probably due to this relaxation that there has been a slight increase in immigration to this Dominion, but so far as projects are concerned for directing a steady flow of immigrants to the country the outcome of the deliberations of the Imperial Conference will have to be awaited. Government and railway seem to have achieved the results which were anticipated.

ECONOMICS

The coal strike in Britain has served as a text for renewed agitation for the teaching of economics in the schools. For a long time past it has been realized that some elementary knowledge of the subject by all classes of the community is a vital factor in both the progress and safety of the country, and what applies in the case of Great Britain applies elsewhere. There are societies in Britain now supplying free instruction to both adults and young people in economics, but this limited teaching is not considered enough. The desire is that it should be supplemented in the schools and especially in the higher classes of the elementary schools.

Mr. T. P. Napier in recommending this course says that unless a beginning is made at an early age to create, or elicit, the reasoning faculty of the child, "we shall find him at a later age incapable of understanding economic or any other serious argument. Strikes will therefore continue to be made in falling markets and leather-headed fanatics will continue to lead or drive their ignorant supporters into semi-starvation and the country will suffer."

Mr. Napier says that what is blocking the way in the teaching of economics is that local education authorities know little about the theory of business and undervalue that which they do not understand. The objections usually raised are those under the plea of a "crowded time table," as if, says Mr. Napier, "in the circumstances of Britain anything except Godliness and hygiene are more important than economics." He asks if the material loss on the coal strike of something between 500 and 1,000 millions will not cause people to reflect since it is a loss largely caused by the general ignorance of economics.

Here is Sir W. Arbuthnot Lane's recipe for health: "Right food, fresh air and sunlight. Wholemeal bread, fresh fruits and vegetables, milk and other dairy products; these are the ideal fuel for the human engine."

Shower baths, regarded as a modern invention, appear to be at least a century old. The following doggerel, appeared in The New Monthly Magazine for November, 1826:

Quoth Dermot (a lodger of Mrs. O'Flynn's),
"How queerly my shower-bath feels,
It shocks like a posse of needles and pins,
"Or a shoal of electrical eels."
Quoth Murphy, "Then mend it, and I'll tell you how.
It's all your own fault, my good fellow,
I us'd to be bother'd as you are, but now
I'm wiser—take my umbrella."

A table has been compiled of the cost of living in sixteen countries. The basic figure is 100 and is taken to represent the cost of living in July, 1913, and a comparison shows that Finland is the dearest country, prices there being ten times higher, with Czechoslovakia a near rival. Italy comes third, Belgium fourth, France fifth and Great Britain twelfth. Some of the figures are: Czechoslovakia, 837; Italy, 649; Belgium, 637; France, 485; Norway, 218; Spain, 186; Denmark, 184; Poland, 177; Holland, 174; Sweden, 172; Great Britain, 170; United States, 167; Switzerland, 162; Canada, 150; and Germany, 142.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

Daedalus, a Greek, was the first man-bird. The methods of those endowed with authority in the days of Daedalus were even more arbitrary than the methods of some people endowed with authority at the present day. Daedalus was charged with some offence against the ruling powers and was cast into prison in company with his son Icarus. Prisons were strongly built and were surrounded by lofty walls in those good old mythological days. Love of personal freedom and affection for his son surged in the heart and wrought upon the brain of Daedalus, and he decided that in order to circumvent his captors heroic and extraordinary measures were necessary.

Daedalus, being a resourceful and ingenious person, constructed two pairs of wings—one pair for wings for himself and another pair for his son Icarus. Early one fine morning the father and son flapped their wings and flew over the prison walls. The father's flight was successful. Daedalus flew over the Aegean Sea, landed in a safe place, and dedicated his invention to Apollo.

Icarus was not so fortunate. Ambition was his undoing. Like a few other successful young men, he was so proud of his accomplishments that he tried to do too much. He soared so high in the air that the heat of the sun melted the wax which he had used to fasten the wings to his body, and he floated into the sea. Thus ended the career of the unfortunate Icarus. Thus ended in a tragedy the first attempt of man to imitate the ways of birds. We, of course, cannot vouch for the truth of this highly interesting mythological yarn. We simply state it as it is set down in the records.

During the course of the many years that have passed over the heads of mankind since the days of Daedalus and his unfortunate son Icarus we suppose many attempts have been made by men to imitate the flight of birds, but not until very recent times have those attempts been successful. The ancient Greeks were accomplished in the arts and learned in the sciences of their day and generation, but they knew nothing about chemical qualities of things, about the chemical qualities of engines. Daedalus and Icarus were not aided in their flight by chemical forces or mechanical appliances. They simply applied their own physical powers to their wings and flew.

Every morning, almost, we read in the newspapers about the breaking of old records and the establishment of new records—records in the athletic fields, records in the realm of trade and commerce, records in the growth of communities and cities, and numerous records which hardly seem worth recording. The record of Daedalus and Icarus might have stood to this day but for the discovery of fuel oil and application of the discovery to the combustion engine.

It is true that for many years men have ascended into the air in balloons, but the balloon is not a flying machine—it is not responsive to the will of the man who goes up in the air with it—it is as the mercy of every puff of wind that blows and its movements are affected by the temperature of the atmosphere. It was not until the dirigible flying machine had been invented and constructed that the art of aerial navigation had been mastered. And even the dirigible flying machine was more or less of a toy in the hands of men until it was subjected to a supreme test during the Great War.

The experience gained in the use of flying machines during the war is now being applied to more useful, more practical and more beneficial purposes. And it is curious to note that the country which gave to the world the first heavier than the air flying machine has made the least progress of any great country in the practical use of the important invention. We sometimes flatter ourselves with the thought that the British airmen got the better of the German airmen during the war struggle for aerial supremacy. Perhaps the Germans might have done better if they had not fixed their faith so obdurately upon the great, unwieldy and vulnerable Zeppelins. At any rate, the Germans have now abandoned their Zeppelins and are developing at a tremendous rate airplanes for general business purposes. They have established aerial transportation lines with present connections in all the populous parts of Europe and prospective connections in all the important parts of Asia and Africa.

Sir Robert Donald, a well-known British newspaperman, told the members of the Imperial Conference now sitting in London that the development of aerial navigation within the British Empire should be given most serious consideration. The statement made by Sir Robert is most interesting as showing the great strides that have been made in Europe within a comparatively short time by the new system of transportation. According to that statement, Germany has established complete mastery of the air. "During the last five months German planes flew 2,500,000 miles and carried 56,000 passengers. British planes during the last twenty-one months flew 2,000,000 miles and carried 25,000 passengers. That means that German planes flew more than five times as many miles as the British and carried more than nine times as many passengers. In 1920 Germany had twenty-seven machines flying service; in 1922 she had fifty; last year she had 142. Her planes flew 5,000,000 kilometres (3,135,000 miles) last year, carrying more than 55,000 passengers."

We wonder how many passengers the airplanes of the United States have carried during the last five months. The number of passengers carried by airplanes in Canada during the same period is not a matter for speculation.

"Penny Dreadfuls"

By a Correspondent in The London Times

A St. Leonards-on-Sea book-seller, Mr. Howes, of Norman Road, has been able to give his new catalogue a touch of novelty by offering what is probably the longest "run" of "Penny Dreadfuls" which ever appeared in any one list. The term "Penny Dreadful" here means no more than tales of school life and adventure for boys, issued in penny weekly numbers during the last two or three decades of the last century. This kind of popular literature is by no means dead, but it was then in its golden age; and, in spite of the enormous sales which many of these "Penny Dreadfuls" enjoyed, it is today most difficult to get clean and perfect copies. The large and gorgeous-colored titles which were given away at intervals are nearly all wanting. It was thought at the time that these "Penny Dreadfuls" were the origin of all youthful crimes then committed—today they are attributed to the cinema—and parental hands confiscated them without mercy. Time has exacted its revenge for the "Penny Dreadful" is now the "sport" of the collector.

The "Penny Dreadful" was not the pernicious rubbish that it was often thought to be. Though not literature, it was healthy, wholesome stuff, and it at least told a good tale and could rivet the attention of thousands of boys to whom Dickens, Lytton, and G. P. R. James would have been boring and "Thackeray" impossible. The "goodly-sondy" stories for the young at that time were loathed by the average boy, and "Penny Dreadfuls," by encouraging reading, did a useful service. To re-read and judge them today, after thirty or forty years, is to test them unfairly. How many of the more ambitious "best sellers" of the mid-Victorian period are alive now?

Not only in the "Penny Dreadful" still affectionately remembered by thousands of Englishmen in all parts of the Empire, but like all other classes of literature in England, it is keenly collected by several great public libraries in the United States. The British Museum is seriously deficient in this sort of printed matter, for it never exercised its copyright prerogative, and now it has to buy what it could have had for the asking.

It is claimed that "Tom Wildrake's School-days" (after appearing serially in The Rons of Britannia in the 70's) was the first of its kind to be issued in penny weekly numbers, and those who are familiar with "Penny Dreadfuls" will agree that "Tom Wildrake's School-days" is the kind of them all. None of its many characters stands out better than the wooten-legged "mariner," Cornelia Dabber, the "Fren o' Nelson," the most fertile and resourceful liar in fiction, before whom even Baron Munchausen is a saint. The complete book, "hand-somely bound in cloth and gold"—not much can be said for its illustrations by "eminent artists"—comprises the hero's adventures abroad as well as at home, and runs to 390 pages, or sixty-four columns. There were clear type. Complete and published at 6s. 6d., it is worth today about eight times as much. Eighteen months after "Tom Wildrake" the still more widely popular "Jack Harkaway's School-days," after running in The Boys of England, began a long career and had numerous sequels. Mr. C. G. Harper, in his new book, "A Literary Man's London," says that Jack Harkaway appeared in Henderson's Young Folks Budget (in which R. L. Stevenson's "Treasure Island" was published, the author getting 12s. 6d. per column), but this is probably a mistake. There were in fact two rival Jack Harkaway series, Edwin J. Brett's, and that issued at the rival establishment, Hogarth House, each written by rival "eminent" authors. In one form or another Jack Harkaway had a vogue of over a decade.

Tales of Heroic Deeds
Nearly a hundred of the "Penny Dreadfuls" are in Mr. Howes's catalogue, and nearly all are familiar titles. There were sea stories which probably determined thousands of boys into becoming sailors; but none of them, if memory can be trusted, could compare with "Captain Tom Drake," a book now of extensive rarity. There were tales of heroic deeds in the Crimea, in the Franco-German War, and elsewhere—"Shaw, the Lieut. Guardsman," "The Life of a Soldier," and many others; stories of outlaws, highwaymen, smugglers, and indeed of every other corner of life. They offered scope for deeds often beyond human possibility.

A mere list of these "Penny Dreadfuls" could run into columns. Some have the real or fictitious names of the owners on the title pages, some have no names at all. The late Mr. R. Garrett, of the British Museum, once had a servant whose father wrote many of these stories, but he never revealed the authorship of those of which he knew. There was no attempt at fine writing or philosophical reflection; the plots, when there were any, were not intricate. So much space had to be covered, and so many words had to be written—the sentences were nearly always short and often jerky—and the text had to be full of incidents, which tumbled over one another with breathless rapidity. The average boy was not a stickler for consistency, and if each pennyworth contained a reasonable number of thrills he was satisfied. Each number always finished up in the middle of a thrilling episode.

The Boys of England type of paper provided a severe blow when The Boy's Own Paper appeared in January, 1879. Talbot Baines Reed's stories at once raised fiction for boys to a higher level. Union Jack, which first appeared in January, 1880, was another nail in the coffin of Brett's and similar periodicals. The authors were accomplished literary men who had reputations to maintain. And so the "Penny Dreadfuls" of the Brett and Hogarth House type were snuffed out. They are now curiosities in the market.

Mrs. Newby—"Oh I wish these recipes would be more definite."
Mr. Newby—"What's the difficulty, my dear?"
"Well, this one tells how to use old potatoes, but does not say how old the potatoes must be."

Man Professes to Be East Indian Maharajah

SEATTLE, Nov. 16.—Mrs. John Miller, of Seattle, who arrived at Salt Lake City, Utah, yesterday, with her daughter, Nancy Ann Miller, and a man who called himself the former Maharajah of Indore, is the widow of an Alaskan miner. Mrs. Miller is reputed wealthy. Her daughter attended the University of Washington.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Although the India Office is unable to confirm the presence of the former Maharajah of Indore in the United States, it is thought that he is probably there, as he recently expressed a desire to tour America incognito. Since the Muntax Hegum scandal and his abdication in favor of his son, Prince Yeshwant, the former maharajah has not kept in close touch with the British Government. The former Indian potentate has a villa in Switzerland and has spent most of his time there.

FOXES WILL BE JUDGED TODAY

MR. MURDOCK MCKINNON, PREMIER FOR FARMERS, IS NAMED AS OFFICIAL

First Provincial Show Was Opened Yesterday by Premier Oliver—Seventy Foxes on Exhibit

Victoria's first Provincial silver fox show was opened yesterday at 10 o'clock by Premier Oliver at the Armories, Bay Street. Many breeders and members of the Vancouver Island Fox Breeders' Association were present.

In his opening speech, the Premier dwelt upon the growth of the fur-producing industry. "The first men to penetrate Canada and British Columbia were fur traders of the Hudson's Bay Company," said the Premier. "He wished the association every success in the show, and in its future operation."

Mr. J. W. Bell, manager of the show, introduced the Premier to the members present. At the conclusion of the Premier's speech, he urged breeders to join the newly formed Vancouver Island Fox Breeders' Association. He thanked Mr. McDonald, superintendent of the show, for the work he had done in this connection.

A further mention of the advantage to be gained by joining the association was made by Mr. McDonald. Sure action on the part of the breeders would not only benefit them, but would also benefit the association.

The greater the number of foxes as sent to the show, the more the judging which will be carried out today. Mr. Murdoch McKinnon, former Governor of Prince Edward Island, a pioneer of the industry, will be the judge, and according to information, the competition will be very keen.

About seventy foxes are on exhibition at the show, and the public attended in fair numbers. According to Mr. McDonald, it is expected that a large crowd will witness the judging, which will be carried out in full view of the public.

The judging of the championship foxes up which has to do with the award of 7500, which will include the best pair in the show, the best male and best female.

Presentation of the various trophies will be made at 7:30 o'clock by Hon. J. D. Maclean, Minister of Finance. Among the speakers will be Dr. T. G. Moody, W. H. Smith and Mr. Murdoch McKinnon.

LUMBER COMPANY IS APPEALING TAX LEVY

North Pacific Corporation Objects to Income Levy on Amounts Derived From Sale of Holdings

In the Vancouver Provincial Court of Revision an interesting appeal has come up which has to do with the right of the Province to collect income tax on the profits that were derived by a lumber company through the sale of its holdings of land and timber. The case is one that has to do with transactions which have been carried on by the North Pacific Lumber Company, in which Mr. Alexander MacLaren, of Buckingham, Que., and associates are deeply interested.

It is the contention of those opposing the imposition of the tax that the Crown's action in carrying out would amount to a decision that unearned increment is taxable as income. The company, about two years ago, it is said, sold three big stands of timber for $1,150,000. The first payments of approximately $1,000,000 were made this year and the Province has assessed this entire sum as profits, serving a tax notice of $59,000 thereon.

It is the contention of the Government that the company having the power in its charter to buy and sell timber limits, that the sales in question were made in the ordinary course of trading, and that the profits therefrom should be classed as taxable income.

It is forty years since the company acquired its timber and it has submitted evidence that it has at all times carried on as a manufacturing company and did not sell a timber stand during its entire career until two years ago when it was decided to wind up the affairs of the concern. Mills were operated at Barnet and on the Fraser River until the war shut them down. Since the war it was decided to sell out.

Several Sales Made
Leases covering 23,000 acres in the vicinity of Campbell River were sold to Bloedel, Welch & Stewart for $2,000,000. Other lands in Vancouver Island were sold to the Lumber Co. for $550,000, and a tract at Cultus Lake, near Chilliwack, was sold to the Westminster Lumber Co. for $400,000.

Mr. Clarence M. O'Brien is acting for the North Pacific Lumber Co. and Mr. Douglas Armour, K.C., for the Minister of Finance of the Province. Similar points have been before the courts twice in the past few years. The Anderson Logging Co. carried its case to the Privy Council and lost, as it was held on the facts that the proceeds of the sale had been distributed by the company as profits. The Standard Lumber Co., at the time of the sale of the Brunette Mills, won its case before the Court of Appeal, which held that, there being only one sale, the profit was a mere accretion to capital.

In any case it is regarded as likely that the issue will be carried to the Privy Council on account of the large sum involved, and from the standpoint of the Province, the vital principle at stake.

WASHINGTON HOTELMEN WILL ASSIST VICTORIA IN TOURIST TRAFFIC

Mr. George I. Warren, who has returned from the Southwest Washington Hotelmen's Association convention held at Lake Quinalt, is highly pleased with the outlook as far as the operations of this association is concerned in its relations to Victoria. An announcement was made at the time of their visit to this city a few weeks ago, that the association had decided to attempt to divert along the lines which the association advocates. With literature setting forth the advantages of this city every tourist that enters the State will be advised to continue on his way until Victoria has been reached.

MR. W. H. WATSON NATIVE SON OF CITY, HAS PASSED AWAY

The death in Surrey, B.C., of Mr. William Henry Watson which occurred at the end of last week removes an old-timer of this city. The late Mr. Watson was born in Victoria in 1848. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Watson, who were well known among the pioneers of the city.

With the exception of about two years spent in the Yukon in the days of the first rush to that country, Mr. Watson made this city his home until six years ago, when he went to Surrey to live. During the past six years he had resided with his two nephews, Messrs. Hisk, Nason and Oliver Nason, formerly of this city also, on a farm in Surrey. It was there he died, the funeral taking place yesterday.

Mr. Watson was unmarried.

NOCTURNAL STRUGGLE ENDS IN CAPTURE

Horned Owl Battles With Motorist at Ten-Mile Point—A Handsome Specimen

When Mr. V. C. Cello, of 1715 Pandora Avenue, drove out to Ten-Mile Point last evening, he did not expect to find a horned owl perched on the trees, leading to the capture of a splendid specimen of the northern horned owl.

A shadowy, across the car lamps was the first indication that the movement of the car had any interest to living objects beyond that of the motorist. Mr. Cello then arched himself with the detachable covers of his car, and managed in the third tree into which the bird had flown to envelop it, and pull the prisoner down. The owl, however, was not a battle, in which it fought strenuously for liberty.

It is a most handsome specimen. Measuring four feet across in the spread wings, and standing on its hind legs, it was a most imposing figure. The owl was taken at Ten-Mile Point, and as he was taken in the middle of the night, he was very fresh. These owls are reported to come in cycles, and to be rather prevalent now, driven by normal sources of food supply. A warning is issued by naturalists to watch chicken runs and songbird trunks, being predatory birds.

URGES CITIZENS TO SEE EXHIBITS

MR. GEO. ROBINSON TELLS OF POTATO AND BULB SHOW HERE NEXT WEEK

Addressee Kiwanis Club on Development of Profitable Seed and Bulb Industry on Island

A feature of the potato and bulb exhibition, which will be held at the Armories in Victoria next week, will be an extensive exhibit of bulbs and seeds, an evidence of a new and growing industry of great importance and profit to Vancouver Island, stated Mr. George Robinson, well-known Elk Lake seed grower, in addressing members of the Victoria Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce. The speaker urged all citizens to attend the exhibition.

Mr. Robinson referred to the remarkable climatic conditions on Vancouver Island that proved so wonderful for commercial production of seeds, bulbs and other horticultural products and touched on the unnecessary importation of flower seeds into Canada, totalling in value about $320,000. He observed that the quality of these importations was not as fine as that of the seeds Vancouver Island could provide. Great Britain imported over $5,000,000 worth of seeds, of which the speaker thought Vancouver Island could easily supply one-half if proper efforts were made. After sketching the development of the seed growing industry, Mr. Robinson declared that fifteen tons of sweet pea seeds would this year be sent to England, with a large increase probable next year. The production of vegetable seeds had not progressed as well as had floral seed-growing, chiefly on account of the inability to obtain certified seed stocks. This would now be remedied, he said, the Canadian Seed Growers' Association having recently taken steps to assure reliable seeds to all commercial growers.

The speaker said that the eyes of the seed-growing world were focused on British Columbia. "Four large British seed firms have this year had representatives here, looking over the country. I am sure that while these gentlemen do not say very much, after the conservative British manner, nevertheless a large amount of business will develop as a result of these inspections," Mr. Robinson concluded, amid applause.

Vice-President Atwell D. King reminded the Kiwanians that the City Council had voted the sum of $1,000 towards the construction by the Kiwanis Club of a children's wading pool at Central Park, and announced that operations would be started in the immediate future.

A group of vocal solos was rendered by Mr. Frank Partridge, and the Kiwanis orchestra provided musical selections.

WARD TWO LIBERALS CONDUCT DEBATE ON COMPULSORY VOTING

Ward Two Liberals last evening had a very good attendance at their meeting, which was made attractive by the fact that there was a debate conducted as to whether it were wise to adopt a system of compulsory voting or not in Canada. The decision on the question was left to the audience, and was given in favor of non-interference with the present system which carries no penalties for not voting.

Mr. H. W. Davis, who favored the compulsory aspect of the situation, quoted figures taken in countries where the system had been adopted, and which showed that it was a benefit. He said that in Canada only fifty per cent of the eligible voters were on the lists and that only about a third voted.

Mr. N. W. Spinks supported this argument, and showed that in Australia small fines were collected for the failure to vote. He was of the opinion that there was more education needed in connection with the public affairs of the country.

Mr. Allan MacLean felt that the situation in Canada in this respect was satisfactory. Australia was the only Anglo-Saxon country in which the system of compulsion in voting was attempted. In this Dominion there was a high standard of general education, and he thought the electorate could be left to attend to the matter as it was.

Mr. Carew Martin, who supported Mr. MacLean, argued that the introduction of compulsion in the matter

AMERICAN PRINTER MISSIONARY ARRIVES

Rev. A. N. Cameron Reached Here on Iyo Maru From Chang-Sha, China

One of the most interesting personalities connected with missionary work in China reached port last night on board the Iyo Maru in the person of Rev. Allen N. Cameron, Protestant missionary at Sandshu City, in the Province of Hunan. Attired in the native dress of the Chinese, with the long flowing silk robes and queue hat, the pastor attracted a great deal of attention among those on the wharf, a great many of whom he familiarly greeted.

Mr. Cameron is an American citizen, having been born in Kansas. For the past thirty-five years, however, he has been in the Orient doing the work of a printer-missionary at Chang-Sha, where he is in charge of a Protestant orphanage.

In this work Mr. Cameron has about forty boys and girls, who are taught printing. LIFE AFTER DEATH FOUND IN THE STARS

Prof. Buchanan, of University of B.C., Lecture Before Astronomical Society Here

In a lecture distinguished for its discovery of humorous analogies between the stars and nebulae in unfathomable space and the more intimate commonplace objects of man's daily life, Professor D. Buchanan, of the staff of the University of British Columbia, last night told an audience at Victoria College something about the theories of great men of science concerning the rejuvenation of the stars. After dealing with some of the older and more familiar speculations concerning the subject, Professor Buchanan came at the last to a comparison of the theories of Russell and Macmillan, two of the younger physicists, without, however, indicating which of the two he personally favored.

The earlier idea concerning the stars was that they are formed from nebulae, to be noted, subsequently defining the progressive life of these nebulae, at very high temperatures which ranged even up to 20,000 degrees Centigrade, and which, through condensation, formed into the large stars which cooled and thus passed down through the different types to extinction.

In 1920, however, that theory had been very generally abandoned, and today Russell's theory took preference. This stated with the assumption that the stars began with cool nebulae, which by condensation generated heat. Then the star began to glow, and the temperature rose with contraction. If the star had mass enough it might generate as much as 20,000 degrees heat at the maximum, from that point turning down the scale to extinction.

Reverse History
Macmillan, another of the modern astronomers, maintained that Russell was so or adapted his theory, which began at the other end of the scale in the star's history, viz., just before extinction, and worked backwards.

This involved the theory that the nearly extinct star ran into some nebulous material and increased in temperature and mass.
"If Russell's theory the young stars are the giants and the old stars are dwarfs; in Macmillan's theory there is no such thing as age in a star, the whole character of the body being due to the material or nebulae which the star encounters," commented the speaker.

In this connection Professor Buchanan found an analogy between a burnt out star and an empty bottle. "The theory is that radiation may go out through these astral 'empties' and refill them, rejuvenate them," he commented, finding in this, again, an instance of the eternal cycle of life which was illustrated by the plant which grows up from the sun's energy only to become food for the animal, and that again, in its turn, furnishing food for the plant.

Solar System
The lecturer began his address with an interesting discourse on the solar system, because from knowledge of this began first knowledge of the composition and movement of the stars. Astronomy had progressed in favor since the time when sun spots had first been detected, this being considered rather a heresy at the time, as discoverer, because the sun was considered the most perfect of God's creations. Professor Buchanan did not commit himself as to his personal views on the connection between sun spots and rainfall. Lantern slides, operated by Mr. Pearce, illustrated references to sun spots, the corona, Saturn with its rings, Jupiter, Venus and Uranus. There were also some pictures of some of the earlier telescopes, including Herschell's, which first sighted Uranus. After some slides of the Lick Observatory instrument came a series of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Saanich, in which connection Professor Buchanan paid a tribute to the work being done here.

"In the presence of members of the staff of the observatory which is doing such magnificent work, I must refrain from saying what I would otherwise say in praise of this; but I sometimes think that we do not sufficiently appreciate the splendid achievements of this observatory," he noted.

Subsequently he again made direct reference to this matter in the course of a description of the various types of stars. The "O" type stars, he noted, must be of most interest in this connection, because of the wonderful investigation carried on at the observatory here, and because of Dr. Plaskett's discovery of the binaries named after him, a discovery which, Professor Buchanan stated, "had knocked the bottom out of some theories which had been held before that time." Subsequently further tribute was paid to Dr. Plaskett in connection with information which he had placed before the Royal Astronomical Society. Tribute was paid to Professor Edington Lane and other physicists and mathematicians who had added to the knowledge of the stars. Lane's theory that the more heat a star gave off the hotter it became, owing to contraction, being considered important.
Radiation was defined at one point as "a sort of communistic leaven," which came in and prevented the stars from becoming too massive. Professor Elliott presided.

Mr. Plunkett, president of the Victoria Liberal-Conservative Association, addressed the Women's Liberal-Conservative Club, Monday night in the Campbell Building.

The great importance of women in political life and their power for good in public affairs was emphasized by the speaker. He urged the ladies to give their best support to the Conservative party and help to improve conditions in the Province. He assured them that as long as he was president he would see to it that anything they might wish to put before the association would have his support.

The speaker said that it was time for the politicians to do something to stop the things being exported, that since 1923 no resolution had been passed, that only publicity and the united effort of the people of the Province would accomplish the conservation of what would be the biggest industrial asset, if kept in the Province.

At the conclusion of the address the president of the club, Mrs. Fairweather, proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Plunkett. The ladies endorsed the Saninch Maternity Act.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe, and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxide powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little wash on the face, rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the face and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. The blackheads are a mixture of dirt and dirt and are simply dissolved and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dirt and dirt and are simply dissolved and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dirt and dirt and are simply dissolved and disappear.

The peroxide powder and the water dissolves the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition. (Adv.)

MIDDLE SCHOOL IS EDUCATIONAL NEED

MRS. STUART JAMIESON, OF NEW WESTMINSTER, ADDRESSES WOMEN'S CANADIAN CLUB

Speaking on "Education as Preparation for Life," Shows Present System's Deficiencies

A very strong plea in favor of the foundation of a middle school which should bridge the recognized gap between the elementary school and the high school was made by Mrs. Stuart Jamieson, of New Westminster, in a logical, persuasive and in every way admirable address which she delivered before the Women's Canadian Club at the Empress Hotel yesterday afternoon. One of the strongest arguments which the speaker advanced on behalf of this proposed institution lay in its suggested possibilities for promoting the general social life by preparing children for co-operation with their fellows which was demanded, in the interests of harmony and peace, in the home relationships, in business, in civic, national and international life. Miss Agnew presided and voiced the hearty thanks of the meeting at the conclusion of the address. Miss Hall, a gifted young pianist, was the soloist for the afternoon.

"Education as Preparation for Life" was the subject under which Mrs. Jamieson arranged her argument. Ever since education began, the assumption had been that it prepared children for life. But the question arose: How far had education realized that aim, and how far had it fallen short? Women, both as individuals and organizations, must come to the move in the direction that the majority of people wished, its direction lying, in the inception of the movement, together with governments and teachers, who were simply the instruments of public opinion.

"Whatever we may think about education, it is we who are responsible for the sort of education that our children get," she asserted. "We must stand behind such suggested reform."

Does it prepare? Did education in the schools today prepare for life? Mrs. Jamieson, to answer this question, compared the old-fashioned schooling of the farmers' children with the townbred child of today. The former may have had only an elementary education in school, but his daily contact in the farm life, touching nature, learning the handling of implements and tools and the practical operations of everyday life in and out of the home, was a liberal ex-school education. The urban home, which formed a much bigger percentage of the home life of Canada today, did not provide this, therefore the school must make up the deficiency.

"Some people ask why we cannot dispense with the frills and fads. They say: 'We did without these things, why cannot our children do without? But they forget that most of our ancestors lived on farms, whereas a larger proportion today are living in cities," said the speaker. "In fact, if our children today are to be educated, it must be in spite of many things," she continued, referring not only to the loss which the urban bred child sustained in losing this contact with the farm, but the detrimental influence suffered in the artificial life of the city with its excitement and complexities.

Not sufficient

The elementary school, whose curriculum was based on the needs of the farmers' children of sixty years ago, was no longer sufficient. Education should be broadened out to fit the boys and girls for the changed lives which they would have to lead. But education had not kept up with the changed mode of living. It was shown that the child's leisure time was not provided for sufficiently; that the home life was not sufficiently studied from the angle of the child's needs, and the necessity of training the boy and girl to take some part in the social life of the community was not considered. The high school was but a continuation of the error found in the elementary school. In other words, it was based on the needs of a past generation which turned its sons into the professions when it did not turn them into agriculture. The result was a recognition of the changed need was found in the incorporation of commercial courses. Only forty per cent of the boys and girls in high school went on to the university. This meant, therefore, that the curriculum neglected the major sixty per cent who did not go on to the university. There was a tremendous waste, both to the taxpayer and to the young people.

"Education has forgotten that life is no longer just agriculture and the professions," said the speaker, who also urged the necessity of recognition of the "phases" of the boys' and girls' younger years, each "phase" with its intrinsic value which should be developed rather than repressed and lost. The important age of adolescence, with its great changes both in the physical and mental development of the child, was curiously disregarded in the present method of education, whereas education at this time should provide a change of subjects, should concede the young person's craving for interests outside himself in the bigger world around him.

"It is a tribute to our elementary teachers that they succeeded so well in keeping our children as interested as they are during the early adolescent age," said the speaker, who found fault with a system of education in the secondary schools which gave half the time to the acquiring of two foreign languages when often the student did not know his own language well.

Middle School

The character of the middle school was outlined, this making provision for extended elementary training with the addition of handicrafts for the boys and domestic science for the girls, study of English, music and art. The selection of parents was also touched upon.

"If you look around at the most illiterate people in the community we find they are parents," said Mrs. Jamieson at this point. But unfortunately the deficiency in the home background was being recognized, and "we must have training for parents so their children become parents," she added. This lay at the back of the present campaign for the founding of a chair of home economics in the University of British Columbia.

LAYMEN'S MOVEMENT LEADER TO COME

Mr. G. B. Nicholson Will Speak at Final Meetings of Christ Church Cathedral Campaign Fund

Well known in Eastern Canada and Middle West as an influential citizen and churchman, Mr. G. B. Nicholson, of Chapeau, Ont., is expected in Victoria on Tuesday, November 30, and will speak at meetings in the Memorial Hall, which will mark the conclusion of this year's organized endeavors to secure funds for the building of the new Christ Church Cathedral. Mr. Nicholson is travelling to the Pacific Coast at his own expense, and planned his itinerary to reach Victoria on November 30.

In arranging for Mr. Nicholson to speak in the close at this time, the new Cathedral committee is carrying out its original policy in promoting the present campaign. While there was the first and obvious need of money before the next contract for building the nave of the new Cathedral could be considered, the committee has desired to advance at the same time, by educational means, the whole cause of the church and organized Christianity throughout the Island.

Started Forward Movement

Resident being known as a prominent lumberman and former member of Parliament for Ontario constituencies, Mr. Nicholson has been unusually active in the service of the church. Always interested in the educational, social and missionary work of the church, Mr. Nicholson is regarded as the founder of the Anglican Forward Movement, which was the greatest venture ever undertaken by the Canadian church. The objects of the Forward Movement were the advancement of the church's varied work in Canada, an overseas, and while Mr. Nicholson's concern was for the provision of adequate financial support to meet the post-war situation, by his own initiative and example he has contended for the essentially spiritual character of man's stewardship, whether in money, talents or time.

When it was felt that the Anglican Forward Movement was regarded as a past achievement, Mr. Nicholson again stepped to the front with the proposal that a National Laymen's Movement be started, to challenge the attention of laymen to the widespread work of the church and its good influence for the highest welfare of humanity. It is as chairman of the National Laymen's Committee of the General Synod of the Anglican Church that Mr. Nicholson will speak in Victoria on November 30.

Anticipated Fresh Interest

Some months ago, the new Cathedral committee anticipated that the building campaign would arouse general interest in church work and reports from city and up-Island parishes indicate that the results of the campaign will not be limited to the financial returns of the church. The objects of the meetings on November 30 will be to receive financial statements of the building fund, and discuss plans for "following up" the campaign for the extension of Christian influence in the individual and community through the church.

S.P.C.A. HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

SOCIETY SECURES PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT SUPPORT TO ABOLISH RODEOS

Nearly 250 Cases Investigated, Inspector Maurice Reports—Election of Officers Held

Election of officers and reports of the year's work were among the business taken up at the thirty-first annual meeting of the S.P.C.A. held last night.

President R. W. Hunter, in addressing the meeting, brought to the attention of the members the abandonment of cats to the bush, particularly in the Malahat district, where the animals destroy birds. He strongly protested against the cruelty to chickens, which was general in the killing process. The method of plucking the chicken through the eye should be prohibited, he said. He also protested against the holding of rodeos, and informed the meeting that the Provincial Government was supporting the proposed abolition of this type of entertainment.

A total of 247 cases were investigated, it was shown by Inspector G. T. Maurice's report. Thirty-one animals were destroyed. Several instances of shooting dogs without provocation were reported.

The laying of poison was another almost impossible problem to solve. Cases of this sort were continually recurring and usually went undetected. Inspector Maurice deplored the failure to get legislation compelling motorists to report running over dogs.

Honorary Inspector

"Mr. Calyow, of Bowser, has been appointed honorary inspector for that district, which covers our sphere of operations further up the Island and into a district where we are badly needed," said Mr. Calyow, who has done much good work, and in the two cases he has taken to court he has obtained two convictions," the inspector said. We were a debt of gratitude to Chief Fry and his men for their kind assistance when required. The same remarks apply to the chiefs of police of Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich.

Our work, however, is becoming so much more in contact with the Provincial police, and we owe a deep debt of gratitude to Inspector Parsons, not only for his help, but for the advice given so willingly when there was a case of cruelty in the Telkwa district. No words can express my gratitude to Sergeant Robert Owens of the local force, and to all his men. Not only will they at all times do anything they possibly can to help us along, but it is due to Sergeant Owens that we meet with the same hearty co-operation at Duncan, Nanaimo and Parkville, and in fact every Provincial police office on the Island.

"Dr. Hamilton and Dr. Keown have always been most generous in giving their valuable time and assistance whenever called upon, and it is hard to say just what this kind and unselfish action means to the society," he concluded.

Miss Dora Killo in her report referred to the importance of Animal Week in the society's humane programme. The children were commended for their co-operation during this week particularly. She reported that the Victoria society was well known in the eastern United States. This she had found out during a hurried visit to New York. The Philadelphia congress also put through some good reforms, particularly with regard to slaughter houses and the fur traffic.

The up-Island district was desirous of forming an organization, Miss Killo reported. Every co-operation was being given in this matter, she said.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mr. R. W. Hunter; first vice-president, Mr. B. T. Williams; second vice-president, Mrs. H. Crane; honorary treasurer, Mr. J. T. Braden; honorary secretary, Miss D. Killo; committee, Mrs. O. C. Bass, Mrs. A. Smith, Mr. Valley, Capt. Williamson, Capt. Marchant, Mrs. B. G. Walker, Mr. B. G. Walker and Mrs. Rutcliffe.

MEALS WILL BE SERVED AT SHOW

Donations for the afternoon teas and luncheons to be given at the Potato, Bush and Seed Show, November 24 to 27, from which the proceeds are to be donated to the hospital, are being given in this matter, she said.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mr. R. W. Hunter; first vice-president, Mr. B. T. Williams; second vice-president, Mrs. H. Crane; honorary treasurer, Mr. J. T. Braden; honorary secretary, Miss D. Killo; committee, Mrs. O. C. Bass, Mrs. A. Smith, Mr. Valley, Capt. Williamson, Capt. Marchant, Mrs. B. G. Walker, Mr. B. G. Walker and Mrs. Rutcliffe.

In no less generous quantities the Comox Creamery Association, of Courtenay, has contributed a box of butter. (Ormond's Limited, of Victoria, has donated the biscuits for afternoon tea on each of the four days, whilst Hedlund & Company, of Vancouver, has contributed sixty tins of Sandwich Spread, put up in handsome display cartons, containing one dozen tins each, which will be shown to advantage among the exhibits.

The afternoon tea has been taken care of by the W. H. Malkin Co. Ltd., who have generously offered to supply all needs in this respect.

James Dickinson Deliberately Reduced His Salary $18 a Month

A NORTH AMERICAN LIFE man was explaining insurance to James Dickinson, a young salaried man employed by a well-known Canadian Company.

"Suppose your employers offered you a contract which provided for the payment of:

- (1) $10,000 to your heirs at your death.
- (2) $20,000 in case your death were accidental.
- (3) A monthly income of $100 for life, if you became disabled and unable to work. At your death your heirs would still receive $10,000.
- (4) A regular pension to fall back upon in your old age when your working days were over.

"In return for these privileges they proposed to hold back $18 of your salary each month.

"Would you accept such an offer?"

"Of course I'd accept!" replied James Dickinson. "Who wouldn't? I'd be ahead every way on that proposition."

"That," returned the representative, "is exactly what North American Life offers you in our Four-Way Policy. To put this into effect, however, you must be your own boss. It's up to you to hold back the $18 each month and deposit it as you would savings. Can you do it?"

James Dickinson didn't even hesitate. He then and there reduced his own salary $18 a month and, in doing so, contracted for the most complete protection a man can have.

Would such an offer interest you? You can apply part of your income as James Dickinson applied his, in a North American Four-Way Policy. Send for our booklet—"It Pays Four Ways."

Among the shades for the semi-formal gown, however, that carry little doubt in their wake, I would suggest the following:

Black—Orchid, powder blue, medium green, peach. Blue eyes take on greater intensity of color with the two shades given first.

The principal offenders among the unfavorable colors are:

Avoid—Black, as has already been explained, can be worn, and with or without any relieving color. A delicate grey frock with accessories of emerald green should prove very effective.

Lastly, strengthen your knowledge of color with familiarity with the correct lines for your figure, keeping to straight simple lines if you incline to stoutness.

An attractive musical programme sponsored by the Ladies' Musical Club, will be presented during the afternoon, and Mrs. D. I. McLaurin will give a short resume of the work undertaken by the auxiliary. A cordial welcome is extended to the public, and the Ladies' Auxiliary will act as hostesses to those who are not making up particular tables. Mrs. S. J. Willis will be in charge of the decorations.

Daughters of Nile
The Daughters of the Nile held a very successful bazaar in the store next to the Sylvester Feed Company, last Saturday, under the direction of Mrs. W. Handley, general convenor and queen of Miriam Temple, No. 2. The winners of the different contents were as follows: Basket of candy, Mr. W. F. Worthington; pillow slip, Mr. A. E. Humphries; table runner, Miss Sidney O'Neill; boudoir cushion, Mrs. M. McKennie; cake, Mrs. Pienierish. The committee wishes to take this opportunity of thanking all those who helped toward making this event a success, especially the daily newspapers for the publicity given through their columns. A parcel, which was left by mistake at the flower stall, can be obtained by phoning 6866R.

Columbia W.A.

Anniversary Dance
The thirty-third anniversary of the United Service Lodge, No. 34, A.F. & A.M., held last evening at the Alexandra Ballroom, proved a great success. About one hundred and thirty guests danced to the strains of Osarda's four-piece orchestra, and after supper, original spotlight effects were a feature of the dancing. Mr. E. E. Day was chairman of the dance committee, and he and his co-workers deserve credit for the excellent arrangements of the enjoyable affair.

Among the shades for the semi-formal gown, however, that carry little doubt in their wake, I would suggest the following:

Black—Orchid, powder blue, medium green, peach. Blue eyes take on greater intensity of color with the two shades given first.

The principal offenders among the unfavorable colors are:

Avoid—Black, as has already been explained, can be worn, and with or without any relieving color. A delicate grey frock with accessories of emerald green should prove very effective.

Lastly, strengthen your knowledge of color with familiarity with the correct lines for your figure, keeping to straight simple lines if you incline to stoutness.

Your Most Becoming Colors
By DOROTHY STOTE

Grey Hair and Average Complexion

For Afternoon Wear—When an artist prepares to paint a portrait one of his first problems is to decide on the background and the costume to be worn by the sitter. And if allowed to dictate, he will obtain a gown that will either blend with the color of the sitter or else go further and emphasize her own color keynote. And for the grey-haired woman with medium complexion the color of her clothes should never deviate from one of these two functions.

So, when each season brings along its quota of new shades she must not accept them unquestioningly, but must first think about their effect on her own color scheme. This year's shades seem to carry frequent allusions to shutter green, burnt russet and fuchsia, and like all named colors, they sound a number of variations along the scale. But taking shutter green to mean a medium (rather greyish) green, burnt russet to be somewhere near a golden brown, and fuchsia to be a pinkish purple, I would say that grey hair and average complexions are in no way interfered with by shutter green, while burnt russet is doubtful, and Venetian fuchsia admits of experimentation.

Among the shades for the semi-formal gown, however, that carry little doubt in their wake, I would suggest the following:

Black—Orchid, powder blue, medium green, peach. Blue eyes take on greater intensity of color with the two shades given first.

The principal offenders among the unfavorable colors are:

Avoid—Black, as has already been explained, can be worn, and with or without any relieving color. A delicate grey frock with accessories of emerald green should prove very effective.

Lastly, strengthen your knowledge of color with familiarity with the correct lines for your figure, keeping to straight simple lines if you incline to stoutness.

THISTLES WILL MEET DOCKERS THIS WEEK

Pacific Coast Second Division Soccer Game Will Bring Old Rivals Together

Saturday's Pacific Coast second division soccer fixtures are: Esquimalt vs. Saanich Thistles, at Royal Athletic Park. James Island vs. Victoria West, at James Island.

The Saanich Thistles soccer eleven, at one time rated dangerous contenders for the first division title, will have a chance to gratify their supporters on Saturday when they meet the class of the local league, the Esquimalt team.

The fixture, which is a Pacific Coast second division game, brings the teams together for the first time in this series. The dockers, with a clean slate, are leading the league, while their opponents, with a draw to their credit, are joint occupants of the cellar with the Victoria Wests.

The Esquimaltians are favorites for this game, but, should the Scots upset the docks, they will create new interest in the race and will be in a tie with their opponents.

At James Island
The Victoria Wests will travel to James Island and meet the Islanders in a league fixture. The powdermen are holding down second berth, one point in the lead of their opponents. Should the powdermen win this fixture they will assure for themselves second place.

Visitors Win Both Basketball Games

BRENTWOOD BAY, Nov. 16.—The West Saanich Hall was the scene of two exciting games of basketball on Friday evening. The first match was between the newly formed girls' team of the West Saanich Athletic Association and a team from the Victoria High School. The home team made a good showing in spite of their inexperience, the score being 28-10 in favor of the High School, under the management of Miss Lillian Smith.

High School—T. Rennie, L. Newham, R. MacMurchie, J. Edwards, J. Christopher.

West Saanich—M. Peden, D. Clarke, E. Anderson, M. Anderson, F. Hamilton.

The second game was between the First Presbyterian "Grays" and the locals, the visitors winning by 48 to 57.

Grays—Mars, E. Knott, Cudlip, Hocking, Turgoose, Killick, Turgoose, Webster and Le Marquand.

West Road—Rice, Peden, Lennan, Tubman, Bluggett.

After the games a dance was held. Harry Kottlin's three-piece orchestra provided a splendid programme. Refreshments were served later in the evening by the committee.

RECORDS CONFIRMED

Paddock and Locke's Times to Go on Book—No Foreign Trips Sanctioned

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 16.—The Amateur Athletic Union, at the closing session of its annual convention here today, rejected all proposals for the invasion of this country by foreign athletes as well as trips abroad by United States stars during the coming year.

The union has ratified the world's record smashing sprint performances of Charlie Paddock for 100 yards and of Roland Locke, University of Nebraska star, for 200 yards, but closed the door to acceptance of further records time by time-and-distance watches.

The expected tight over acceptance of the records themselves—9.5-10 seconds for the century by Paddock and 20.5-21 seconds for the farlong by Locke—failed to materialize. Both were ratified without objection, but it was only after spirited debate that the convention voted to taboo, after next January 1, the type of watches that registered these performances and to readopt an official fifth-second timepiece.

Towers Will Meet Port Arthur First

VANCOUVER, Nov. 16.—The Vancouver Towers, British Columbia Senior hockey champions, will meet Port Arthur, Allan Cup holders, in the first of four exhibition games the visitors will play during the tour of the Coast cities. The opening game has been set for December 4, after which the Canadian champions will visit Victoria and Portland, returning to Vancouver for the fourth and final game against the ex-King team on December 12.

Covey Will Defend Court Tennis Title

LONDON, Nov. 14.—G. A. Covey, world's professional court tennis champion, has accepted a challenge for his title sent by Pierre Etcheberry, of Paris. The match will be played at the Prince's Club, Knightsbridge, England, during the week beginning May 9, 1927, for a bet of $1,000 a side. Covey won the championship before the war and successfully defended it against Walter Kinsella, of New York, in 1922, and again in 1923.

Greenleaf or Rudolph Must Win the Title

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—By their victories tonight Ralph Greenleaf, New York, and Edwin Rudolph, Chicago, will meet tomorrow night for the world's pocket billiard championship. Each has won seven games in the round robin tournament and lost one, and cannot be overhauled by any of the other contestants.

Greenleaf tonight defeated his old rival, Frank Taheraki, Schenectady, N.Y., 125 to 9, in twelve innings, while Rudolph beat Pasquale Natale, Baltimore, 125 to 91, in twenty-four innings.

Colonel O. M. Biggar Said to Have Resigned

OTTAWA, Nov. 16.—There is a report here that Colonel O. M. Biggar, chief electoral officer for Canada, has resigned, and official announcement to that effect will be made soon after Premier King returns from Rome Imperial Conference. The report is that Colonel Biggar is to accept a position with a big financial firm. The salary of the chief electoral officer is $12,000 a year, and Colonel Biggar was appointed to that position in 1920.

Lady of the Lamp Still Inspires Nurses' Work

100,000 Women Now Serving in United States Are Guided by Policy Started Years Ago by Florence Nightingale

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The influence of Florence Nightingale, "Angel of the Crimea," on every woman who has gone into professional nursing is shown in documents found in the archives of the St. Charles Aid Association, following the death of Miss Louise Lee Schuyler, founder of the association. When Miss Schuyler was planning the establishment of the first American training school for nurses—that at Bellevue Hospital—the advice of Miss Nightingale was sought.

The letters she sent in reply show how clearly she understood hospital conditions and they are filled with warnings against allowing any nurse to feel that she has medical knowledge enough to take the place of a doctor. On the other hand, she is most insistent that the hospital nurses be under orders from a woman supervisor, and not from a doctor.

"It seems extraordinary that this first essential, that women should be in matters of discipline under a woman, should need to be advocated at all," she wrote, "but so it is."

One letter to Miss Schuyler shows the modest nature of the famous nurse. She had been asked to lend her name as an honorary member of the St. Charles Aid Association. In reply she said in part:

"Increasing business and increasing weakness warn me to abide by a rule I have been forced to make, even to declining to be a vice-president of some of our own institutions of which I have done some of the preliminary work. The work I can do, if I can do it, without giving my poor name; if I can't, to give my name is simply deceiving and insulting the kindness of those who wish to have it. Pray, believe this is a mark of interest instead of want of interest."

Nursing Policy Adopted

The letter which outlines the policy of nursing that has been adopted throughout the country as the result of her advice is addressed to the late Dr. W. Gill Wyllie, after he returned from his visit to St. Thomas' Hospital in London on behalf of the organization in 1872 to study the nursing system instituted there by Miss Nightingale. It was written at a time when Miss Nightingale had been warned by her doctors "that if I have business interviews of more than half an hour it is at the risk of my life." She wrote in part:

"I wish your association Godspeed, with all my heart and soul, if I can, answer any questions you may think it worth while to ask."

"You say: 'The great difficulty will be to define the instructions, the duties, and the position of the nurses in distinction from those of medical men,' and you are 'anxious to get my views in relation to this subject.'"

"Is this a difficulty? A nurse is not a medical man. Nor is she a medical woman. (Most carefully do we, in our training, avoid the confusion, both practically and theoretically, of letting women suppose that nursing duties and medical duties run into or overlap each other; so much so that we have often been asked to allow ladies, intending to be 'doctors,' to come in as nurses to St. Thomas' Hospital, in order to 'pick up'—so they phrased it—professional medical knowledge, we have never consented even to admit such applications, in order to avoid even the semblance of encouraging such gross ignorance, and dabbling in matters of life and death, as this implies. You who are a 'real man,' who know the difference between the professional studies of the medical student, on the one hand, and of the nurse, will readily see this.)"

All Desired Changes

"That the nursing of hospitals, including the carrying out of medical orders, must be done to the satisfaction of the medical officers, whose orders regarding the sick are to be carried out. And we may depend upon it that the highly trained, intelligent, nurse, and cultivated moral woman, will do this better than the ignorant, stupid woman, for ignorance is always headstrong."

"That all desired changes, repudiations, etc., in the nursing and for the nurses, should be referred by medical officers to the superintendent."

"That rules which make the matron (superintendent) and nurse responsible to the house surgeon, or medical and surgical staffs, except in the sense of carrying out current medical orders, above insisted on, are always found fatal to nursing discipline."

"All discipline must be, of course, under the matron and ward sisters; otherwise nursing is impossible."

Again begging you to command me, if I can be of any use for your great purpose, to which I wish every success and ever-increasing progress, pray believe me, sir,

"Ever your faithful servant,"
"FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE."

The Bellevue Training School for Nurses was established in 1872. It was the first thing of its kind in this country, and all that have come into existence since have followed with little variation the rules set down by Miss Nightingale, more than fifty years ago.

It was Miss Schuyler who realized the need of a nurses' school. For some time she had been interested in visiting the sick in the state and city hospitals, and it was because of her interest in this charity that she founded the St. Charles Aid Association, of which the city visiting committee is a branch. The need for nurses impressed itself upon her as she carried on the nursing movement in the United States has grown to a point where it now enrolls a profession of 100,000 women.

A liar is a man who has no partition between his imagination and his information.

Hunters Are Already Thinking of Summer

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 16.—A forepart of the invasion of the Canadian North woods by hunters and fishermen during next season may be made from the number of inquiries on the locations already coming into the Tourist Department of the Canadian National Railways. Since the close of the 1925 season, well over 100 inquiries have been received by the department from hunters and fishermen in Canada and the United States, who, having spent part of the year in Canada, are already planning their next year's outing.

Javanese Communists Have Singapore Base

BATAVIA, Java, Nov. 16.—The East Indian Communists who carried out attacks last Friday night at various places in Western Java, during which a number of persons were killed or wounded, have established a base at Singapore for arms and ammunition destined for the East Indies.

Five hundred men, armed with rifles, last night attacked the garrison at Laboen but were repulsed. One of the soldiers of the garrison was wounded. It is believed the attacking party lost heavily. Laboen is isolated. Communications have been cut, bridges destroyed, and roads blocked.

Ungrateful Secretary Would Poll Tax Women

VANCOUVER, Nov. 16.—Opposition was voiced by Alderman John Bennett today to the proposal of Mr. A. E. Craddock, secretary of the Associated Property Owners, that the $5 poll tax should be extended to women wage earners. The alderman contended that most women and girls could ill-afford to pay the tax, and said that in any case not more than $10,000 would be realized.

Soviet May Purchase Old Russian Supplies

VANCOUVER, Nov. 16.—The Evening Sun today published the following:
"After indifferent storage along the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks in Vancouver and vicinity, and in Montreal, Pittsburgh and Tacoma, Wash., for many years, the $3,000,000 worth of rolling stock which the British Government sold to the Russian Government before the war—and which the latter failed to pay for, or have delivered—is reported to have been sold by a New York firm to the Soviet Government."
Three Russians, representing the Soviet Government, visited Vancouver about three weeks ago to inspect the steel wheels and other parts of the box cars intended for the wide-gauge Russian railway and afterwards they proceeded East.

C.P.R. to Run Tourist Cars to Saint John

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.—With the first calling for the winter season from Saint John, of the Canadian Pacific liner Melita, a new departure, involving a great service to travelers on C.P.R. lines will be put into effect. It was used to some extent during the last six weeks of the previous season, but will be at the service of travelers of the whole of the coming season. Through tourist sleeping cars will be operated on C.P.R. trains from Winnipeg direct to the ships' side at the New Brunswick pier.

This service has been given a wider scope by the fact that in addition to Winnipeg, through tourist sleeping cars will also be operated from Edmonton, Calgary and Moncton in connection with certain sailings from Saint John. Indications already prove that these ships will be heavily patronized by passengers from the west of Canada, while there will also be a large contingent from Ontario and Quebec. Attention is drawn to the fact that the Montreal leaving December 7, and arriving in ample time for Christmas, is offering a third cabin for travelers, a concession that has in the past been much appreciated and of which full advantage will be taken.

Leading French-Canadian Folk Music Exponent to Visit City at Early Date

DR. CHARLES MARCHAND
The most popular living exponent of French-Canadian folk music, who will tour the Dominion under the auspices of the National Council of Education, beginning November 18 at Winnipeg. He is here shown singing on the roof of one of New York's skyscrapers on the occasion of his visit there for the purpose of making gramophone records. On this tour Mr. Ernest Patience accompanies him.

At the Playhouses

PLAYHOUSE Gertrude Astor, playing an important part in "Through the Back Door," Mary Pickford's new photo feature on exhibition at the Playhouse Theatre, claims to be the only actress who ever toured her way into pictures. She went to Los Angeles several years ago as a member of the "Boston Band," most famous ladies' band in the world, and was engaged to play the trombone in some scenes for a Selig feature. This started her on a career in the speechless drama. She has worked for Universal as a serial queen and also as a comedy queen.

COLUMBIA Three film editors working with Rupert Julian, director of the feature, assembled "The Phantom of the Opera," now playing at the Columbia Theatre. Lon Chaney's spectacular success in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," Gilmore Walker, chief editor for the Julian unit, has with him Edward Turtles, cutter of a number of recent Universal features, and an assistant, Julian worked directly with the two editors in rounding the spectacle into shape. Much of the spectacular part of the picture is in color, such as the great masquerade on the grand staircase of the Paris Opera and opera performance itself. It is showing for the last time today.

COLISEUM Ed Redmond has a big theatre cast at the Coliseum this week for "In Walked Jimmy," a laugh-provoking comedy that is proving popular. Twenty people are engaged in the four well-arranged acts, and the high-class vaudeville between the Government Street theatre is indeed offering good value. The play concerns a young man who rescues a business that seems to have failed beyond all hope, and his cheery optimism and joy of life saves an old man from despair.

CAPITOL At last a comedy star theatre had made a "different" picture. It is "Battling Butler," the new Buster Keaton mirth provoker, playing all this week at the Capitol Theatre. Keaton can always be depended upon to provide good entertainment. In "Battling Butler" he exalts himself, for the picture has a real plot, is replete with love interest in addition to the kind of screen farce that made the frozen-faced comedian famous, and is clean and wholesome. Also, Buster has surrounded himself with an usually capable cast. The story of "Battling Butler," a successful stage play before it was brought to the screen, is a screen from start to finish. Keaton, wearing his traditional frozen face, portrays a rich, pampered youth who goes to the country for an outing—and finds adventure.

DOMINION British actors, British scenes, British villages and a story that stirs every particle of patriotism you have will delight countless thousands who see "Every Mother's Son," an outstanding achievement of the British motion picture industry. It is now playing at the Dominion Theatre. The story starts with a typical London fog in November, 1888. Two dear old country people, a man and his wife, are starting on their first holiday trip in the big city, probably their wedding day. Their attention presently is drawn to a little wall-looking, they find a queerly wrapped bundle on one of the benches of the Embankment. The Thomas below tells the red dunce, and it seems a perfectly natural thing for the gentle-faced old lady to pick the abandoned baby up and take it tenderly home with her.

Return Engagement Of Matheson Lang at Royal Starts Thursday

The forthcoming return visit to this city of Matheson Lang, the famous English romantic actor, will be a most interesting one, in view of the fact that he will be seen for the first time in this continent in one of those Chinese roles he has made so famous. At the Royal Victoria Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday he will appear in "The Chinese Bungalow," one of the most thrilling plays in his entire repertoire. There is nothing that Mr. Lang can do better than this sort of thing. As a grave, philosophic, and merciful Chinese potentate, he is irrefragable. "The Chinese Bungalow" is quite as good a play as "Mr. Wu," in some ways better. Mr. Yuan Sing, a wealthy Chinese, dwelling in the Malay States, catches the English woman who has married him (and is sorry for it) entangling herself with a Chinese. The rubber planter shall die a natural death, and as for the wife, he discards her after a process of almost torturous and proposes to take to himself her high-spirited sister.

CANADA ATTRACTS POLISH EMIGRANTS

United States Quota Law Turns Settlers to This Country—Argentina Is Rival

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—The combination of the quota barrier erected against them by the United States, and the fact that the Galician colony which settled in the vicinity of Edmonton in 1923, is acting as a drawing medium, hends the trend of emigration from Southern Poland largely towards Canada, according to Gerard Hyna, C.P.R. passenger agent at Lemberg, who was interviewed recently. Accompanied by A. T. Macdonald, London, and H. J. Wyatt, Belfast, representatives of the Canadian Pacific, Mr. Hyna has just completed a coast-to-coast tour of the railway's system. "Canada lost a certain strength in the emigration business by the closed doors erected by the apertal permit system in the years from 1920 to 1923, and during that time, hundreds and thousands of good Polish emigrants went to her great rival, the Argentine. The United States, due to the quota system, has become a negligible quantity, with 3,400 entries to that country a year, to be divided between fifteen different countries.

Big Population You can readily imagine that emigration is a great factor in Polish life when you figure that Poland has a population of 28,000,000 with an annual increase of 450,000.

She had a severe struggle after the war, merging German, Russian and Austrian Poland into one nation, but today she is prospering. She has all the coal she can use herself and more rich workings of salt, iron ore, oil and silver ore. For the rest she is largely an agricultural country, never forgetful, however, her forests for her export of lumber are considerable. "We sent 8,000 Poles to Canada this year, and you will be glad to hear that they were all agriculturalists, and all headed for the Canadian West, for which they are peculiarly adapted, they are used to a hard life at home, and when I say hard life, I mean a life which makes their seeking it out in a new territory, as they do in the West, seem a great step forward in their lives. I have seen families which came out here a few years ago, established in comfortable farm buildings,

A GLIMPSE OF BARKERVILLE IN ITS VERY EARLY DAYS
BARKERVILLE was the metropolis of the halcyon days of the Cariboo. There, with careless insouciance, the lucky miners came to gamble and frolic, and there the unlucky ones came for credit and supplies to carry on their prospecting. There, also, the express company received and credited gold to its holders, as well as shipping the precious metal to the coast and arranging for the sending in of necessary supplies. Much of the old place still is in evidence, though the gravel has engulfed a portion.

PROGRESS PLEASES RED CROSS HEADS

OTTAWA, Nov. 16.—Dr. James W. Robertson, chairman of the Central Council of the Red Cross Society, returned home recently after a six weeks tour of the Western provinces. He was accompanied by Dr. J. L. Biggar, recently appointed chief commissioner of the Red Cross. Both were highly pleased with the growing understanding and appreciation in the West of the work which the Red Cross Society is doing.

Doctors Robertson and Biggar conferred with members of the provincial governments of the four Western provinces, particularly with the Ministers of Education and Health, concerning ways and means of continued and enlarged co-operation, with the Red Cross as their volunteer auxiliary, in efforts for the improvement of health, the prevention of disease and the mitigation of suffering. They also had conferences with the provincial divisions of the Red Cross in respect of their peace-time programmes of service. It was learned that the Junior Red Cross for the for-

Indictments to Come From Seattle Inquiry

SEATTLE, Nov. 16.—King County Prosecutor Colvin announced last night that a county grand jury which has been inquiring into charges of corruption here, will be asked tomorrow to return indictments. The inquiry was started by testimony of Edward W. Pielow, a former Seattle police sergeant, who declared that he would prove that graft was rampant during the mayoralty of Dr. Edwin J. Brown.

"Beau Geste"

A Great Mystery Story

By PERCIVAL CHRISTOPHER WREN

The three Geste brothers, Michael, Digby and John, have been under the shadow of disaster, following the mysterious theft of the "Blue Water," a valuable sapphire owned by their aunt, Lady Francis. They join the French Foreign Legion and there come into contact with the dregs of humanity. They form a fast friendship with two adventurous Americans, Hans and Buddy, in their first fight with a band of murderers. The three Geste brothers are victorious, and follow their victory the men march to the lonely fort at Sidi-bel-Abbes, where Michael, or "Beau," and John had the misfortune to lose their brother Digby, who, with the two Americans, was sent to the mysterious interior of the Sahara. Things went to pieces at Sidi-bel-Abbes. A form of insanity broke out. The commandant killed himself and the new commandant died later. Adjudant Lejaune, a brave but brutal soldier, was given the post. A plot broke out to kill him and desert, and "Beau," John and a few others decided to tell Lejaune about it and remain loyal to the file.

Boldard came out of his fit of broad-brimmed abstraction. "That is what Guantalo said," he replied. "He wanted me to join Boldini, Colonna, Gatto and myself. We were to plot and kill Lejaune and those who stood by him against the mutineers, after those poor fools had been arrested and either shot (in self-defence, of course) or put in the cells. When we had got the diamond we would decide whether to liberate the mutineers and use them in fighting our way to Morocco, or whether their mouths had better be closed. . . . We would set fire to the fort and clear out—and everything would be put down to the account of the Arabs."

"And why did you not fall in with this pretty scheme?" asked Michael. "Well—why could I trust Boldini? Or Guantalo? Or any of them, for that matter? They are not honest men. Once Boldini had the diamond, what would be the worth of the life of the man who had a claim on a share of it? To have the diamond would, of course, be death! To be one of a syndicate owning it would, of course, be death! Even to know who had got it would be death, for the man who had it would kill you for telling him or demanding your share. . . . How can one work with such dishonest people?" and the speaker's voice broke with righteous indignation.

"And has Guantalo made any other proposals which you have rejected with contempt?" asked Michael. "Oh—any number," replied Boldard. "He seems to think I'm a fool. He actually proposed that I should rob you, and he and I should desert together, before all this mutiny business takes place. I was almost tempted—but—"

"Quite," said Michael. "It must be a great handicap." "It is," agreed Boldard. "And besides," he added, "how could two men walk across two thousand miles of desert, apart from the question of guano and the Touaregs? And wouldn't Guantalo murder me directly we got to Morocco?"

"Unless you murdered him first," said Michael. "Yes," agreed Boldard, "but one might leave it too late. . . . and he meandered on about the untrustworthiness of Italians. . . . Let's get down to business," Michael interrupted.

"What have you told us all this for? What do you want us to do?" "Why," said Boldard, "I tell I must deal with honest men and I must get away. It is certain death for me. If I get the diamond I shall be killed for it, or for knowing that Lejaune has got it. If I don't get it, Lejaune will kill me for failing him, or else for knowing too much when there is a court-martial about the mutiny. . . .

"Well," Michael encouraged him. "I thought that if I told you two all about it—the real truth to honest men—you would save my life and your own, and give me a share in the diamond."

"How save our lives?" Michael asked.

"All desert together before the mutiny, and you give me a third-part share in the diamond when we are safe."

"How do you know we should keep our promise?" asked Michael.

"Because you are English. . . . In Brazil, we say, 'Word of an Englishman' and 'Word of an American' when we are swearing to keep faith. If you promise, I know you will perform."

"This is very touching," said Michael. "But suppose I give you my word that I haven't got a diamond and never possessed a diamond in my life?"

Boldard smiled broadly, as at one who must have his little jest.

"Oh, Behor!" he murmured, waggling his head and his hands idiotically.

"One knows of the little parcel in your belt-pouch," he said.

"Oh, one does, does one?" smiled Michael. "Fancy that now!" Silence fell.

"Well—as you just said, two or three people can't march off into the desert and expect to live for more than a day or two," observed Michael after a while.

"No—might make a party," suggested Boldard. "It is known that St. Andre, Maris, Cordier, and one or two more may refuse to listen to listen to Schwartz's plan to kill Lejaune."

"Nor are they deserters," said Michael.

"No—but when they know that they are to be killed by the mutineers if they don't join them, or to be killed by Lejaune if they do—what then?"

"Tell them the truth—that Lejaune is going to have no survivors of this mutiny—whichever side they may be on. No. He's going to have the diamond and the credit and glory."

of suppressing the mutiny and saving the fort single-handed. He'll teach the legionnaires to mutiny! Their mutiny shall end in death for the lot of them—and in wealth and promotion for Lejaune. He sees himself an officer and a rich man on the strength of this fine mutiny. . . . And what happens to the men who told him about the diamond—the men who helped him and risked their lives for him? What, I ask you? . . . Death, I tell you. Death! Death! Death!" he screamed, trembling and slaving like a trapped beast.

"And who did tell him about this wonderful diamond?" asked Michael.

"Boldini," replied Boldard. "As soon as he rejoined, he told him of the gang of famous London jewel thieves who had fled from the English police to the Legion. He and Guantalo and Gatto were to get it and give it to Lejaune, who would protect them and who would either place it and share with them, or keep it until they had all served their time. . . . I don't know."

"And you put up to me to steal it in Sidi, eh?" asked Michael. "Why you?"

"But Boldard spurned such an unworthy suggestion. 'Anyhow, we're getting away from the point,' Michael interrupted him. 'What's to be done? We're certainly not going to desert. I wonder if one could possibly persuade the gentle Lejaune that there's no such thing as a diamond in Sidi-bel-Abbes?'"

"I'll pretend you hid it and left it at Sidi-bel-Abbes," said Boldard. "That's an idea!"

"That's an idea!" Michael laughed. "Did you leave it at Sidi?" asked Boldard.

"I most certainly have not got a diamond here," replied Michael.

"Do you swear it by the name of God? By your faith in Christ? By your love of the Blessed Virgin? And by your hope of the intercession of the Holy Saints?" asked Boldard.

"Not in the least," replied Michael. "I merely say it. I have not got a diamond—Word of an Englishman."

"It's a chance," whispered Boldard. "Dear Christ! It's a chance. Oh, lovely Christ, help me! . . . I'll tell Lejaune you left it at Sidi."

"Tell him what you like," said Michael.

Boldard pondered. "If I tell him, he'll make sure you haven't got it," he said darkly, and rose to his feet. "But I'll try it. There is a small hope. . . . I'll tell you what he says," he added.

"You'll tell us something, I've no doubt," replied Michael, as the heroic Portuguese took up his pail and slunk off.

"Well, my son—a bit involved, what?" smiled my brother as we were left in solitude.

"Nothing," replied Michael promptly and cheerfully. "Just wait events and do the straight thing. I'm not going to bunk. And I'm not going to join any beastly conspiracy. But I think I'm going to 'beat Boldard to the draw,' as Hank and Buddy would say—when he tries to cover me with his rifle."

"In other words, you're going to shoot friend Boldard before friend Boldard shoots you?" said Michael.

"That's it, my son. If he's cur enough to do a dirty murder like that, just because Lejaune tells him to, he must take his little risks," replied Michael.

"And if that happens—I mean if I see him cover you and you shoot him—Lejaune is going with him. It is as much Lejaune's murder as it is Boldard's," I said.

"You're going to shoot Lejaune, eh?" asked Michael.

"I am," said I. "If Boldard covers you. Why should he cover you, in particular, out of a score or so of men, unless he has been told to shoot you?"

"Well—we'll tell Boldard just what's going to happen, and we'll invite him to tell Lejaune, too. It would be fairer, perhaps," said Michael.

"Golly," I observed. "Won't it make the lad gibber! One more slayer on his track!"

"Yes," smiled Michael. "Then he'll know that if neither Lejaune nor Boldini nor Schwartz kills him, I shall. Poor old Boldard. . . ."

"What about poor old us?" I asked.

"We're for it, I should say," replied Michael. "Of course, Lejaune won't believe that this wonderful diamond they are talking about has been left at Sidi, and he'll carry on."

"I'm muddled," I groaned. "Let's get it clear now."

"One: We tell Schwartz we won't join his gang, and then we warn Lejaune of the plot to murder him."

"Or shall we tell Schwartz that Lejaune knows all about it?" Michael interrupted.

"Good Lord, I'd forgotten that," I said. "I suppose we'd better."

"Then they'll crucify poor old Boldard for good, this time," grinned Michael. "Serve him right, too. Teach him not to go about murdering to order."

"We need not say who told us that Lejaune knows," I observed.

"And then they'll know that you and I are beastly traitors," said Michael. "Of course, they will at once think that we told him ourselves."

"Probably Guantalo has told him that, and done it himself, meanwhile," I suggested.

"Oh, damn it all—let's talk about something else," growled Michael. "I'm sick of their silly games."

"Yes, old chap. But it's pretty serious," I said. "Let me just go over it again."

"One: We tell Schwartz that we won't join his gang. And that Lejaune knows all about his plot."

Jaune were raising a rifle to shoot you, as Boldard will be doing to me. If I shoot Boldard, you couldn't just blow Lejaune's head off, in cold blood. That is exactly what Schwartz is going to do. . . . And what we object to."

And it was so, of course. I might just as well go to Schwartz and offer to be the butcher.

"Well," said I, "suppose I cover Lejaune with my rifle and tell him I'll blow his head off the moment he moves—and then I'll tell him to."

"Consider himself under arrest?" jeered Michael. "And what are you then, but the rank mutineer of the lot? Besides, it is quite likely that Lejaune won't be there. He's brave enough—but he'd like to survive the show. In fact, he intends to be the sole survivor, I should say."

"Looks as though we've simply got to join Schwartz then," I said.

"Darned-if I do," replied Michael. "I'm certainly going bald-headed for anyone who goes for me, but I'm not going to join any mutineers, nor commit any murders."

"Nor are you," he added, as I stared glumly into the desert.

"What is to be done then?" I asked once again.

"Nothing," I tell you," repeated Michael. "We've got to jump lively when we do jump," as Buddy says; but we can only wait on events and do what's best, as they arise. Meanwhile, let's hold polite converse with the merry Schwartz. . . . Come on."

And we got up and strolled through the starlit darkness to the Port.

"I suppose we can take it that Sergeant Dupree knows all about the plot?" I said, as we passed into the stifling court yard.

"No doubt of it," replied Michael. "I'm inclined to think Lejaune would try to keep a nice compact 'loyal party' to deal with the mutineers, and hope they'd be like the Kilkenny cats, mutually destructive. . . . Say Dupree, Boldini and five or six legionnaires. . . . Some of whom would be killed in the scrap. . . . Of course, one doesn't know what his plans really are—except that he means to get a diamond, a lot of kudos, and a nice little vengeance on his would-be murderers. . . ."

"We entered the barrack-room, we saw that a committee meeting of the 'butcher' party was in session. They stared in hostile fashion at Michael and me as we went to our room and got out our cleaning rags from the little bag."

I sat down on my bed and began melting wax on to my belt and pouches, preparatory to anti-quag labor.

The conspirators' heads drew together again.

Michael went over to where they were grouped at the end of the long table.

"Have you come with your answer to a question I asked you about some cochons?" growled Schwartz, scowling at him.

"I have come with some news about a cochon, my friend," replied Michael.

Half a dozen pairs of eyes glared at him, and I strolled over. So did St. Andre from his cot. Just then Maris and Cordier entered, and I beckoned to them.

"He knows all about it," said Michael.

COMOX TEACHERS SELECT OFFICERS

INSTITUTE PRESIDENT THINKS
PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATIONS ARE MISNOMER

Courtenay Boys' Band Comes in for Praise From School
Inspector

COURTENAY, Nov. 13.—Sixty delegates from all over the district, from Qualicum Beach north to Campbell River attended and registered at the annual convention of the Comox District Teachers' Institute. In his address on Friday morning the president, Mr. G. W. Stubbs, of Courtenay, welcomed the visiting delegates and took for his subject the much discussed question, "What Is Wrong With Education?" His contention was that the trouble in that education had not been "sold" to the fathers. Regarding Parent-Teacher Associations, Mr. Stubbs maintained that in reality there were not such institutions, a more appropriate name would be mother-teacher associations, for, generally speaking, the fathers were not taking any interest in the matter. So long as this apathy was manifested it would be uphill work. He called the delegates attention to exhibits of writing and drawing which had been sent by the Normal Schools of Victoria and Vancouver. These included specimens of work marked and criticized by the instructors at the Normals, and had been of much assistance to teachers.

Preceding a most interesting lecture by Professor Roward, of the U. B. C., which was reported in the issue of Sunday, the Courtenay Boys' Band, under the very able leadership of Mr. H. E. Murray, of Cumberland, gave a very pleasing concert, which showed that the band had advanced considerably during the year.

Examination Standards
Inspector A. Stewart spoke on the new examination standards. He gave an outline of how entrance examinations were judged and marked at the present day. He strongly favored the new objective type of examination of which he gave many examples, and defined objectivity in examinations, as being the degree in which the examiner's prejudices were eliminated in marking the papers. While Inspector Stewart was speaking to the senior teachers, Mr. A. Burpee gave a most helpful talk on changing aims in primary handwork. Miss Burpee illustrated her talk with a large number of specimens which she had brought with her from Vancouver.

Nature Study
Mr. E. H. Russell, district representative of the Agricultural Extension Service, stressed the importance of nature study and elementary agricultural training in the school, with a view to interesting pupils in farming as a profession.

After the luncheon adjournment, Mrs. G. Mugford, of a class of six pupils from the ungraded school at Oyster River, demonstrated the value of dramatization in teaching composition, literature, spelling, geography, history and self-confidence. The speaker was most enthusiastic and her enthusiasm reflected itself in the class, showing what could be accomplished in a school which is without any of the advantages of graded city schools.

Inspector J. M. Paterson followed the demonstration by outlining other projects which he had seen in the district. He cited the Courtenay Boys' Band as one of the finest school projects that he had seen undertaken.

School Sports
Mr. Leslie Buckley, of Courtenay, in his address on school sports urged that an organized policy be recognized as a school subject. He discussed physical drill and cadet corps as at present carried on, and expressed himself as being in favor of mimetic exercises and track events for public school physical training.

Mr. H. E. Murray outlined the Upper Island school sports organization and suggested some improvements in this connection.

The election of officers of the Institute for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Hon. president, Dr. S. J. Willis, Superintendent of Education, Victoria; president, Mr. G. B. Apps, Cumberland; vice-president, Mr. G. W. Stubbs, Courtenay; secretary-treasurer, Mr. L. Harty, Cumberland.

The following resolutions were adopted by the convention:

1. That drawing be removed as an entrance examination subject.

2. That Governor-Generals' medals be awarded on a basis of size of schools, and not by geographical districts.

3. That a definite sports programme be substituted for the present physical training course.

The convention terminated with a

Hunter Carrying Deer Kills Cougar On Way to Home

NANAIMO, Nov. 14.—While coming down the mountain side at Cameron Lake on Sunday last with a buck deer on his back, Mr. Wm. It measured six feet in length, and was brought to Nanaimo by Mr. Thompson, where yesterday he collected the Government bounty.

SEEKING ORDER IN HIGHWAY SIGNS

Courtenay Is Asked to Determine
What Will Be Done Next
Year on Chief Thoroughfares

COURTENAY, Nov. 16.—Those present at the regular meeting of the Courtenay City Council on Monday night were Mayor McKenzie, and Aldermen W. Douglas, Wm. Fielder, F. Field, Theed Pearce and E. L. Macdonald.

A letter from the assistant district engineer, Mr. W. P. Beavan, informed the Council that the estimates for the next fiscal year were being prepared, and he would be glad to know what work the city was contemplating for the primary and the two secondary roads within the city.

Mayor McKenzie explained that he had been pressing for the completion of the fill on Union Street, on a fifty-five foot basis with the Department. He hoped to see an improvement in the approaches of the steel bridge and to the Lake Trail sidewalk and the turn at the Lake Trail city limit. It was for the Council to determine what was required. Alderman Douglas said he felt sure that they could find lots that needed doing. On motion of Alderman Fielder, the letter was referred to the Board of Works, whose chairman, Alderman Douglas, will prepare a list of the proposed work for further consideration. Regarding hard surfacing, the Mayor explained that this could be included in the supplementary estimates which are made in April or May.

Transfer Pipeline
The Comox Water Company wrote, formally delivering possession of the new Comox pipeline to the City of Courtenay for administration. Mayor McKenzie, in explanation of the communication, said that he understood there had been difficulty in arriving at an agreement as to the water rates for some of the larger consumers at Comox. These included the hospital, the school and the hotels. The pipeline had not yet been completed to its proposed limit; the company however had the necessary funds on hand but were held up for pipe.

At a recent meeting at Comox he had suggested that the company had better get busy and set the rates for these institutions in order that they may be contributing to the revenue as private consumers were already paying for their supply of water. The communication was turned over to the Water Committee and a report is to be made at the next meeting.

To Revise Signs
Another communication from Mr. P. Phillip, Deputy Minister of Public Works, drew attention to the need of uniformity in the matter of highway signs. Eleven different signs accompanied the letter, which requested co-operation of all municipalities by conforming as far as possible to these standard signs. On motion of Alderman Pearce, the city is to express its desire to co-operate in the advisability of the removal of obsolete logging and other signs along the highway and thereby making the new signs more effective.

OLD METCHOSIN

Mr. H. C. Helgeson Talks on Early Days in District—Pioneers Had Strenuous Experiences

METCHOSIN, Nov. 15.—On Saturday evening last there was an old-time gathering at Sherwood of young and old, and from far and near, to hear Mr. H. C. Helgeson talk on the old days in Metchosin.

Mr. Helgeson, while disclaiming powers as a lecturer, kept between fifty and sixty people spellbound for two hours, while he spoke of the days when all the fields were virgin forest, when Indians camped on the beaches, and the roads were just trails through the forest. Without the use of modern implements, or stumping powder, but with a stout heart and a sturdy arm, the land was cleared; to pay their taxes, the settlers worked on the roads, which followed, for the most part, the old Indian trails. First the school was built, then the church and later the hall. Though the life of the pioneer was hard, yet there was still time found for gaieties, and it was no unusual sight to see parties of nineteen or twenty riding off to visit far distant friends.

Mr. Helgeson had many amusing incidents to relate, and before closing his talk, paid a glowing tribute to the sturdy pioneers, the fruits of whose labors their successors were reaping. The evening closed with refreshments served by Mrs. Helgeson.

To Improve Waterworks

NANAIMO, Nov. 16.—Last night after a long discussion the City Council approved the plans as outlined by the Council recently, as to the work to be done on improving the city waterworks system, but that the method of financing be further discussed between the Waterworks Committee and the Finance Committee, and their report to be submitted to the Council at their next regular meeting.

Mr. S. H. Gavin, secretary of the Nanaimo and District Farmers' Association, informed the Board that the Association had purchased Lot 4, Wallace Street, for market purposes.

East Sooke Institute

EAST SOOKE, Nov. 16.—The monthly meeting of the Farmers' Institute was held at Ragley on Monday evening, at which twenty-two were present. The subject chosen was "Poultry," and the speaker was Mr. J. E. Terry, chief poultry instructor, who is an old friend in the district.

As many of the members are poultrymen, keen interest was taken in the lecture, and Mr. Terry was bombarded with questions, which he answered most helpfully and humorously.

The secretary read the report of the deputation to the Hon. Dr. Sutherland, about the road, and of the dance at the Chamber of Commerce.

Notice was given of the social evening to be held at Metchosin on Nov. 25, and the home-cooking stall to be held in the basement of David Spencer, Ltd., on Dec. 11.

The annual meeting was fixed for Dec. 15, and will be held at Rocky Point School. Mr. Cartwright favored the gathering with some violin solos after refreshments had been partaken of.

Local Council Meets

NANAIMO, Nov. 16.—Nanaimo Local Council of Women held a lengthy session Monday afternoon when seven affiliated societies were represented. Mrs. Volkov and Mrs. Vance were appointed delegates to assist the Parent-Teacher Association with raising funds for the Chair of Economics for the University of British Columbia. The Secretary was instructed to forward a resolution to the National Council asking for proportional representation on the National Executive.

The meeting took a neutral stand on a resolution sent by Nanaimo Gyros, regarding the new hospital, but pledged assistance for any venture promoted for this purpose.

Supply of Grain Ships At Vancouver Is Better

VANCOUVER, Nov. 15.—Grain ships are carrying away the wheat that is pouring into Vancouver as fast as railway trains can bring it along, according to a statement made by port officials last night. In the last few days five vessels have loaded cargoes of grain aggregating more than one million bushels. Six or seven vessels are expected to arrive this week to load full grain cargoes and, according to marine authorities, Vancouver promises to be a record month since Vancouver became a grain port.

FARMERS HEAR OF NEW FALL OATS

Only Five Per Cent of Apples Eaten
In Victoria Are Grown on Island

SOOKE, Nov. 14.—At a well attended meeting of the Sooke Farmers' Institute, Prof. E. L. Straight, superintendent of the Dominion Experimental Station, gave an interesting talk on principles of plant life, on the proper use of fertilizers, the advantages of Fall seeding over Spring seeding and the care of orchards. Two statements by Prof. Straight were received with particular interest by the meeting, namely, that the Dominion Experimental Station was developing a strain of oats for Fall seeding, which would withstand the winter, and that only five per cent of the apples sold in Victoria were grown on Vancouver Island.

Mr. George Robinson, of Elk Lake, pointed to the necessity of farmers, in order to be successful, possessing or acquiring the same knowledge of agriculture, as men in other callings have of their respective trade or profession.

Mr. N. B. Pollock said that one of the primary requisites to the farmer's success was love for his work before monetary consideration.

Mr. C. E. Whitney-Griffiths stressed the necessity of farmers meeting together often, taking advantage of each other's experience, as well as making use of the information on agricultural subjects which both the Dominion and Provincial Governments were putting at the farmers' disposal.

Mr. R. Robillard spoke of his experience while engaged in the fruit business in Victoria.

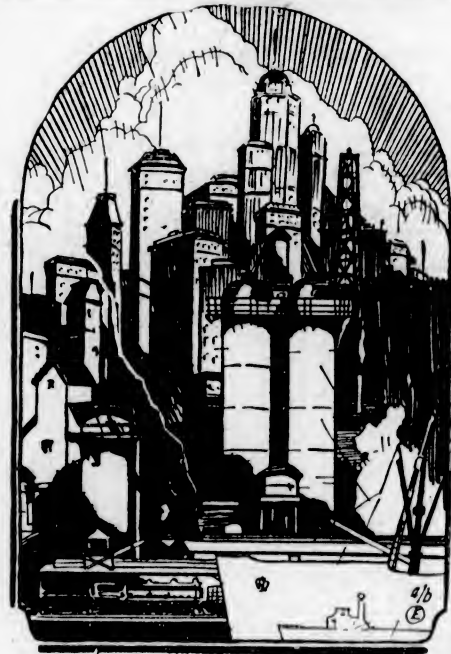

A vote of thanks was tendered to the speakers by the meeting and Prof. Straight extended an invitation to the Sooke people to visit the Experimental Station.

To Help Injured Man
NANAIMO, Nov. 14.—Residents of Brechin district raised the sum of $100 for John Kerr who had his arm amputated in a railway accident recently, at a benefit dance at Northfield on Saturday night. Several helped to swell the fund.

Delegates Chosen
METCHOSIN, Nov. 16.—A meeting of the Conservative Association was held in the Hall on Monday evening. Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Pooley were present. Mr. W. O. Sweatman was elected as delegate to the convention in Kamloops.

Dominion Chart Making in 1926—Lillooet and Somass Have Busy Season

There are always more requests for areas and spots to be surveyed than there is time, in the eight months available, to be completed with so that much work has always to be left until each following season.

To Barkley Sound
The Lillooet first went to Barkley Sound on the west coast of Vancouver Island. Mr. H. D. Parlane, assisted by Commander J. H. Knight and

Mr. Dwyer and Willis, carried out the survey of Pipetum Inlet, located two miles in the fairway. An examination of Jiffingham Inlet was next carried out when a rock reported was located and put on the chart. This was followed by a survey of a new channel in San Mateo Bay. Next search was made for twelve rocks outside the entrance to Uchelet Arm, and the rocks were eventually located and put on the chart.

Returned to Victoria
The Lillooet then returned to Victoria for a few days, afterwards making her departure for northern waters for the season. She carried out a survey of Rose Bay (postoffice address in Still Water), in Malaspina Strait. This was followed by a short stay at Trawl River to complete the survey made in 1925. Next proceeding through Seymour Narrows to near Alert Bay, a survey was carried out of Heaver Cove, on the main island of Vancouver, where a lumber mill is newly at work.

Johnstone Strait
This was followed by the work of connecting or tying in the Imperial survey of Johnstone Strait with the points determined by the Dominion Geodetic Survey. This necessitated the climbing of mountains nearly 1,400 feet in height, and the surveyors carrying their instruments as far above sea level gave quite a pleasing change to the usual work.

Winds Favor Africa
Maru and Liner Will
Dock Ahead of Time

AIDED by south and south-westerly winds the O.S.K. liner Africa Maru will reach the William Head quarantine station tonight at 8 o'clock and dock at the Outer Wharves about 10:30 o'clock, according to latest wireless advice received from the captain. This will bring the vessel in ten hours ahead of schedule. She was originally due at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Bay was visited and two reported wrecks were located. Then the Lillooet proceeded to Barkley Sound, where the vessel was based on the houseboats Somass and Fraser, with the large launch Thistle. The two houseboats were closed up for the winter and left up in Cradle Harbor on Seaford Channel.

Coming South
The ship then came south and started the survey of the Strait of Georgia, locating an eight-fathom bank halfway between Hornby Island and Texada Island. This was reported a year ago by a Japanese fisherman, and was found to be exactly in the spot indicated. The Admiralty Hydrographic Survey of the east coast of Vancouver Island was then connected and tied to the station of the Geodetic Survey. The Lillooet returned to Victoria on Sunday, October 31.

Waterfront Activity
At Vancouver Keeps
Longshoremen Busy

VANCOUVER, Nov. 16.—Employment along here is now at its high water mark. Only one ordinary day has been seen since the demand for trimmers.

On that day, 1,155 men were working on the waterfront. The number has remained at 1,000 or more for some days.

The activity is not in grain ships, as there has been only an ordinary demand for trimmers. It has been among lumber and general cargo movements.

M'KINLEY TO SAIL TOMORROW

LINER WILL DOCK THURSDAY AFTERNOON AND SAIL AT 5:30 P.M.
President Jefferson Due to Reach Here From Far East Early Friday Morning

Two Admiral Oriental vessels will sail at this port within the next forty-eight hours. Outbound for the Far East, the President McKinley is due to arrive from Seattle at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and to sail at 5:30 p.m. Inbound from the Orient, the President Jefferson is expected at Quarantine Station early Friday morning. She will dock at the Outer Wharves at about 7 a.m.

The McKinley will pick up a large number of cabin and fifty steerage passengers at this port for her trip out, and a heavy shipment of mail in her cargo, loaded at Tacoma and Seattle. The vessel has a large amount of machinery, automobiles and cotton, consigned to Japan and China.

Included in the President Jefferson's cargo is 3,050 bales of raw silk and a large amount of the manufactured product. This shipment, which is valued at $4,000,000, will bring the total value of silk to be brought in from the Orient within three days to the $16,000,000 mark.

In addition to the silk shipment the Jefferson is bringing in, sixty cabin passengers, 150 in the steerage, 2,000 sacks of mail, and 2,500 tons of general cargo loaded at all Oriental ports. A number of passengers will disembark here and a quantity of mail and cargo will be unloaded. She will clear for Seattle from here.

Among the prominent passengers aboard the Jefferson is Colonel Carmi Thompson, who is returning to Washington after conducting an investigation into the question of independence for the Philippine Islands.

IYO MARU HAD FINE VOYAGE FROM ORIENT
N.Y.K. Liner Brought in Second Largest Silk Shipment to Enter This Port This Year

With the second largest silk shipment of the year and the third largest ever consigned to go through Seattle, the N.Y.K. liner Iyo Maru docked at Rihet's Wharves last night shortly after 9 o'clock inbound from the Far East. In all, 7,571 bales of raw silk were carried by the liner at an estimated value of between $7,500,000 and $8,000,000. This valuable cargo will be loaded into two special Great Northern trains early this morning and will reach Seattle and rushed to the Eastern States.

Exclusive of her silk, the Iyo Maru brought in 500 tons of mixed Oriental cargo, including shipments of bamboo, Japanese rugs and matting, toys and fish hulls. Twenty-two tons were discharged here. One ship and six stowage passengers left the ship at this port.

The ship arrived thirty-six hours ahead of time. Following south and southwesterly winds aided the vessel on the latter part of her trip, and her master reported a very smooth trip all the way. She cleared for Seattle about 11 o'clock.

Two Persons Kidnapped and Chief Officer Wounded—Gunboat Drives Boarders Away

HONG KONG, Nov. 16.—The British steamer Sunning was boarded by pirates eighty miles from here and was fired by the boarders, but saved from destruction by the arrival of the British gunboat Bluebell. It was rescued today.

The Sunning was on its way here from Shanghai. The Bluebell sighted the Sunning in distress, her upper works afire.

The fire was subdued and a salvage tug was sent to her aid. Owing to damage to the Sunning's wireless, details of the pirates' activity and loss to the ship itself are not available here.

It is reported one person aboard her, the chief officer, was wounded and that two European persons had been kidnapped by the pirates. The pirates escaped in their smaller boat and are being hunted by the Bluebell.

The coastwise steamers Kaying and Suway are standing by.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 16.—In an effort to prevent their being attacked by Chinese militarists along the Yangtze River, many British ships which ply in Chinese waters are having the Union Jack painted on their sides. Shippers hope this will make firing on them or commandeering them inexcusable. The seamen's strike is reported to have been completely broken. All strikers have been summarily dismissed and new crews employed.

PORT ALBERNI MILL
BUSY WITH SHIPPING
Export Cargoes Are Greatly in Demand—With Improving Conditions in Lumber Trade

PORT ALBERNI, Nov. 16.—The Alberni Pacific mill has been busy during the last few days in preparing cargoes for shipment. The motorship Tacoma is due to load one million feet of lumber and 300,000 feet of logs, arriving next Sunday.

The Arna is due on Saturday, and will take 1,500,000 feet for Atlantic Coast points. The Canadian Prospector will also load 1,000,000 feet for Atlantic ports. The Skagway will load 1,500,000 feet for San Pedro.

There has been a steady decrease in the American tonnage since 1923, both in vessels engaged in foreign and in coastwise trade. The percentage of America's trade carried in American ships during the last year has been several years ago. In 1921 American vessels brought seventy-one per cent of the imports to this country, and in 1925 brought only forty-nine per cent. In 1921, American ships carried thirty-eight per cent of the exports from the United States, while in 1925 they carried only thirty-two per cent.

"Before the war, two countries—Great Britain and Germany—owned 82.5 per cent of the world's shipping. The United States has now taken Germany's place, and last year America and Great Britain owned 52.6 per cent of the total.

"Ships under construction on June 30, 1925, decreased 405,000 gross tons, or seventeen per cent, compared with the previous year. Less shipping at this time was under construction than during any period since 1909. In Germany, which last year showed the greatest percentage of increase, tonnage under construction jumped from 211,000 tons to 245,000 tons, and American construction rose from 80,000 to 119,000 tons.

"And you say you guarantee these cargoes?" "Guarantee them? Why, madam, I trained them from canary seed!"

STOCK PRICES BARELY HOLD THEIR GROUND

Higher Money Rates Continue to Cast Shadow Over Market—Bond Trading Slows Down

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Stock prices today barely held their ground as trading resumed itself into an uninteresting tug-of-war between opposing speculative factions. Higher money rates continued to cast shadow over the market which could not be wholly dispelled by the recent series of larger dividends and the favorable construction placed upon the Standard Oil Company's $200,000,000 financing programme.

United States Steel, after selling at a new high on the current movement of 15 1/2, fell back at the close to 15 1/4.

Other steel shares were irregular, a slump of 1/4 points in Gulf States contrasting with higher prices in Sloss-Sheffield and 1/2 in Crucible.

Dealings in the general run of stocks were somewhat restricted by the maintenance of a five per cent rate for rail funds, although this was regarded as merely a temporary financial incident to mid-month financial settlements.

News of an important contract for locomotives was the signal for a spirited demonstration in Baldwin, which lifted the stock to a new price of 12 1/2, although it fell back two points before the close for a net gain of 3/4.

Under cover of this advance selling activities proceeded quietly in other quarters. United States Rubber closed nearly two points lower at 60 1/4, apparently on reflection of lower tire prices.

At Paul issues were among the most active of the rail shares. Total sales, 1,448,800 shares.

An upward revision of time money rates, lifting quotations on all money rates to 4 1/2 per cent tended to halt forward movement of bond prices today and trading was throttled down to a slower pace.

VICTORIA VISITOR IN HURRICANE

WIFE OF GOVERNOR OF BRITISH HONDURAS IN ATLANTIC
TYPHOON

Mrs. Burdon, who left recently for Central America, writes relatives concerning experience

Mrs. Katharine J. Burdon, wife of Major Burdon, Governor of British Honduras, has written to her sister, Mrs. R. E. Hartley, of Victoria, a vivid description of the recent terrible hurricane in the Gulf of Mexico, into which the St. Canadian Forester, on which she was a passenger, had the unhappy misfortune to run on October 21. Mrs. Burdon was returning to British Honduras after spending the summer on Vancouver Island visiting her sisters, Mrs. Hartley, of Victoria, and Mrs. Greig, of Pender Island, so that the story taken on an additional interest for her many personal friends here.

The following is the letter, which reached here on Monday and was dated St. Canadian Forester, October 22.

More Terrifying

I was on the fringe of a typhoon in eastern waters many years ago and in a hurricane on land in St. Kitts, B.W.I., two years ago, but I think the experience of yesterday, Friday, October 21, 1926, was more terrifying than anything I have ever experienced. We left Montreal on October 13, in the Canadian Forester of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, with Captain T. R. Coffin in command, and except for two days of rather rough weather had a splendid run to Bermuda, where we arrived at daybreak on October 20.

Heard of Storm

News had been broadcast from Washington of a tropical disturbance of great intensity, said to be travelling over the extreme west of Cuba and South Florida and moving with great rapidity north by northeast. In accordance with this information and the latest reports received from the centre of the storm, the Captain decided to steer well to the south, a course which should have taken us quite clear of it. But the storm, when we met it, was a real one, and it was not until we were well into the northeast, and instead of avoiding it, we steered straight into it. We had left Bermuda at daybreak, the weather was a little rough and in the evening it looked very threatening, but nothing to be alarmed about as we expected to get some high winds and seas, usual with a hurricane about.

I woke up at 3:30 a.m., an accident in the engine room and sudden cessation of the heat of the engine awakened me. The wind and sea had risen considerably and the ship wallowed and rolled about at their mercy for an hour or more. I think I ever listened so intently for anything as I did for the renewed heat of that engine. There is a peculiar sound in the wind that precedes a hurricane that only those who have heard it can appreciate, and I knew we were in for something more than an ordinary blow. Thank goodness, the engineers, who had averted a far more serious accident by their prompt action to the engine, got the ship up and away before we met the full force of the gale.

We had left a number of passengers at Bermuda, among them several children, who had sailed with us from Montreal, so fortunately we had very few women and children on board. Two young mothers and their babies, a colored Jamaican and her small boy, about eight years of age, myself, were all the passengers we had. At about 4 o'clock the stewardess, kind as she was, came in to close my ports and bring me a cup of tea, and told me that all ports and doors leading outside were to be kept closed by the Captain's order.

I dressed as quickly as the rolling of the ship and chattering trunks etc. would let me, and went over to help one of the young mothers to get her baby and her baby into the saloon. It was difficult to keep one's feet at all by that time, and everything not firmly fixed took charge. We were joined later in the saloon by some of the men and the other women. To keep the wee babies happy and the mothers, who were both terribly sick, as cheery and comfortable as possible gave me something to do and think about.

elly that the ship would not head up to it, she seemed to stand and shiver at the onslaught. We were soon in the thick of it and the noise overhead, above the roar of the wind and sea, was terrific. It sounded as though everything was being ripped off above our heads and the saloon began leaking in several places. The stewardess and stewards were splendid, going around fixing and tidying up as best they could and helping where wanted, but those two hours seemed an eternity.

The relief was great when the purser and second officer came down and reported how things were going up above. Much canvas and wood-work had been ripped off, they told us, and one of the officers had been unable to get out of his cabin for about an hour, owing to the debris from the bridge which blocked his door on to the deck. Boat covers had been ripped off but no boats had been lost and the wind was abating.

The Captain estimated that the velocity of the wind at its height was not less than 120 miles per hour, and that, according to the reported time of its having passed over Havana, the rate of the passage of the storm must have been something like 600 miles per day. At a little before seven the wind suddenly ceased and for three quarters of an hour we rode the terrific sea without a breath of wind. The sudden cessation of its roar was awe inspiring, but I was the only one in the saloon who knew what the silence of the wind meant. It meant that the very centre of the hurricane was passing over us, and I felt that it was almost impossible for the ship to weather such another thrashing as she had just gone through but which I knew she would have to face again in a short time. During this time the sea was tremendous, far more terrific even than in the wind belt, racing from every direction and with no wind pressure to flatten them. Our position then was 30 north latitude and 67 west longitude.

The Captain afterwards told me that he would have liked to turn the ship round to meet the wind from the same beam again, but in such a sea it was impossible. After the three quarters of an hour interval the ship once more shivered and pitched, the wind hit her on the starboard side, this time ripping off more canvas, and boat covers, and very nearly taking the whole cabin ladder. For two more hours the good little ship pitched and rolled, fighting it bravely through until at about 9 a.m. the report came down that all was well, we were through the worst and safe.

Officers Smiling

One by one the officers, who had been up all night, came down soaked to the skin, but with smiling faces, to get some food and take up breakfast to the Captain on the bridge, which he did not leave till 10 a.m. The breakfast went up in a galvanised iron bucket with a bath towel round it. I crawled down to breakfast in the dining saloon at 8:30, proud to be one of the three passengers who ventured, and was very amused to be told by the steward that there was the usual breakfast with the exception of poached eggs, which the cook was very sorry he could not do without breaking in such rough weather.

Captain Cheery

At 10 a.m. it was good to see the Captain's cheery face, to see him open the saloon ports himself and let some air into the ship, which by this time was hot and stuffy beyond words, in spite of the electric fans. In the Captain's own words speaking of the storm: "In all my thirty-two years at sea I have never seen anything like it." The waves were enormous. A Canadian passenger remarked, when looking out of the saloon port, "It looks as though the ship was forging her way through the Rockies." I passed through the Rockies myself a fortnight ago and the description fits admirably; one moment we were on the crest of a wave and the next in the hollow, with towering white-capped peaks all around above us and as she rose gallantly to the next the bows appeared to be almost perpendicular, and her propeller plunged out of the water shook the whole ship from bow to stern. The marvel was that no one was killed or even hurt by the falling debris on deck and no one was lost overboard. The bolon had married engine and was only saved by his clinging catlike on the rail. Some cabins were swamped by water getting through the ventilators but otherwise practically no damage was done below.

The Captain said his chief anxiety, when he saw the iron bridge rails bent and the canvas coverings ripped off the boat decks as though they were bits of paper, was that the tarpaulins and covers should be torn off the hatchways. This was prevented by passing lashings over the hatches. If this had happened with the big seas that were shipping fore and aft, the holds would have been flooded and there would have been little hope for us. Until late in the night the tremendous seas kept up but this morning a mild well and the damaged decks are all that remain to remind us of what we have been through. After the storm the Captain sent a wireless to our sister ship the Canadian Fishery, who had passed up in the forenoon of Thursday on her way to Bermuda, advising them of our experience and the direction and position of the storm centre. She advised us by return that she had got ahead of the storm to safe anchorage in Bermuda.

We received an ROR call from the "Eastway," a freighter which sank with all hands, but were absolutely unable to turn to her assistance. Even a much bigger ship, which answered the call, had to abandon her attempt to help.

Our thanks to God for his great mercy and our gratitude to the Captain and his officers, who, under him, brought us safely through, can never be expressed in words.

October 25.—We have just heard in Nassau of the tragic loss of H. M. R. Valerian, with whom we had spoken on Thursday morning on her way to Bermuda. She apparently turned turtle in the hurricane we had weathered.

BRIDE WAS UNWILLING SO MARRIAGE IS NULL

So London Paper Quotes Bishop of Southwest as Saying of Council of Vanderbilt's Case

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Council of Vanderbilt's consent to her marriage to the Duke of Marlborough was given unwillingly and therefore they were never married in the eyes of the Roman Catholic Church, The Evening News quotes Bishop Peter Amigo, of Southwest, as declaring. It was the diocesan court of Southwest which annulled the marriage, with the confirmation of the verdict by the Holy Rota tribunal in Rome.

"Therefore," he is quoted as saying, "there never was a marriage contract, and though they may have lived together for more than twenty years, they were never married." Aside from The Evening News story, it is admitted in ecclesiastical circles that the plea of the former Duchess, who is now Madame Jacques Balsan, was that at the age of seventeen she was virtually forced into the union with the Duke. She alleged that she was induced to marry through the influence of her mother and other relatives. Ecclesiastical circles declare positively that the Duke has not been received into the Roman Catholic Church, but that annulment of the marriage leaves him free to be so. It is understood the fact the former Duchess' second husband, M. Balsan, is a Catholic counted a good deal in her desire to have her first marriage annulled.

Evidence Produced in Trial of Dr. P. Moore

PORT ANGELES, Nov. 14.—Prosecutors of Dr. Paul D. Moore, of Sequim, Wash., and Nashville, Tenn., on a charge of murdering his wife by poison, in presenting charges at the opening of the second day of his trial here today, declared they had witnesses to show that Moore predicted the day and the manner of his wife's death.

The State asserted that Mrs. Moore died of convulsions from tablets prescribed by the doctor. Right now the prosecution stated that it would present evidence of friendship between the physician and Charlotte Rendall, of Sequim, beginning a year before the death, and resumed three days after the funeral.

News and Notes From Interior of Province

La Rose Ore Shipment
ALICE ARM—The Lalloue Mining Company shipped forty-two tons of high grade silver ore last Monday. The shipment is destined for Trail and is expected to carry high values. Work has been suspended at the mine until next spring. This action was taken on account of the prevailing low price of silver.

Increases Traffic
CRESTON—Continued expansion of operations at Kimberley and Moyie by the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company very largely accounts for almost a forty per cent increase in westbound freight on the Cranbrook division of the C.P.R. Right now the yard crew at Sirdar is worked to capacity to handle the tonnage and any further increase will necessitate double crewing both in the yard and on the barges between Froster and Kootenay Landing.

Heavy Apple Crop
VERNON—To date, $70,000 has been paid to growers by the Vernon Fruit Union on account of the various pools. Payments have been made on sundry vegetables, apple and peach pools, and two pools have been closed. The Transcendental Crab pool has been closed and the following prices paid subject to the usual deductions: Fancy, 14c; Grade, 6c. The Duchesne Apple pool has closed as follows: Extra Fancy, $1.16; Fancy, $1.12; Grade, 23c. Movement of apples has been very fair for some time and already the Associated is finding difficulty in supplying the demand for all of the various varieties in size and grade. Shipment of Macs has reached the huge total of 625,000 boxes of a crop estimated at 645,000 and there remains on hand about 70,000 boxes.

Prominent Rancher Dies
PENTICTON—The unexpected passing of Mr. W. G. Craig, well-known rancher and fruit shipper, at the Penticton Hospital, on Tuesday evening was a shock to his many friends and associates in Penticton. He was engaged in fruit growing and had occupied a parking house on the bench for the past few years.

Ranchman Change Hands
PENTICTON—An important real estate transfer took place in Penticton this week when the Lalloue ranch of ten acres was sold to Mr. J. D.

Munroe, barrister, of Lloydminster, Alta., for $10,000. The purchase price naturally includes the fine residence on the property. The Smithers ranch at Oliver has been sold by Mr. Wilkins, to Carlton McIntosh, a Scotch oil drilling engineer who has been resident in the Polish oil fields for many years.

Historic Flag Honored
PENTICTON—Following the Armistice Day observance at the Cenotaph the significance of the day was further emphasized by the unveiling of an appropriate case—honouring Penticton's historic flag, on the school steps. In the presence of the reeve and other officials and prominent citizens. This flag, which was presented to the original contingent leaving Penticton in 1914 by Mr. J. A. Nesbitt, is historic in Canada. It flew on the ramparts of Ypres and was present in every action in which the Canadians took part, but one. Since the close of the war this flag has lain in the municipal vault, but through the enterprise of the Elks it will be permanently placed in the school as an historic relic and inspiration to the youth of the town.

Argument Concludes in Labrador Boundary Case

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Argument by counsel before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in the appeal in the Labrador boundary case, in which Canada and Newfoundland are each seeking to prove ownership of a certain portion of the region of Labrador known under the name "Coast," which began five weeks ago, closed today and judgment was reserved.
